New Editors Appointed

Sarah Frazee and Ken Stryker, left, pose with last year's annual. Sarah has been appointed annual editor following Ken's lead. To the right are Larry Leonard and Claudia Hansen, old and new Thunder-Word editors. Larry was sports editor this year and will be next year's editor.

Awards Banquet Honors Leaders

Eighteen students were honored Wednesday night at the Highline College Awards Banquet when student government, scholarship and athletics leaders gathered in the food center of the Student Center for this annual event.

Most received a mahogany plaque with the college's seal and the name of the award.

Vicki Mason won the top scholarship award. As an usher, she led the commencement procession last year as one of the top scholars in her freshman year.

A special scholarship award of $100 from the recent college Art Auction was given to Dale Rutter, outstanding art student.

Brian Smith was awarded a special gavel as president of the A.S.B.

Associated Student Body awards in the form of plaques went to Terry Fischer, vice-president; Diane Skutley, secretary; Louis Cella, treasurer; and Patty Springer, I.C.C. representative.

Other awards went to: Claudia Hansen, editor of The Thunder-Word; Ken Stryker, editor of the Annual; Harley Freeburn, publicity chairman; Linda Graham, social chairman.

Eight meritorious service awards were presented to: Pete Vastenhold, Linda Hemingway, Leone Bourgeois, John Logan, Judy Dyer, Laura Wade, Linda Roby, and Kristi Knapp.

Many plaques and letterman awards were presented to basketball, track, tennis and golf players.

Mgt. Club Elects Howard

Plans for next year's Highline Management Club are now under way. Newly elected officers for the coming year are as follows: President, George Howard; Vice-President, Jim Willhight; Secretary, Jerry Morasch; and Treasurer, Dan Somke.

A reunion of old and new members is being planned for this summer which will include a social and business meeting with committees.

Jim Willhight participated in the National Conference in Chicago.

This was the first year that Highline has had a Management Club. It's evident that this year's club has been successful.

At the Yakima state conference, the club members came home with a 1st, 2nd and 3rd place award plus two state officerships.

Constitution of WFCL Ratified

A group of students from Highline College recently attended the Community College Leadership Conference. The primary reason for this year's meeting was the ratification of the constitution of the newly formed organization, Washington Federation of Collegiate Leaders, and election of officers to co-ordinate this organization.

Those attending this meeting of Gray's Harbor Community College in Aberdeen were Louis Cella, Sue Coffman, Art Davidson, Terry Fisher, Sarah Frazee, Claudia Hansen, Tom Henry, Lewis Moormann, Karen Moss, Diane Skutley, Brian Smith, Gary Smith, Patty Springer, Virg Staiger, and Ken Stryker, all representing different areas of student government and activities.

The first meeting held Friday morning was to ratify the constitution of WFCL. After some debate as to procedure, the constitution was ratified, with only Everett voting against it. The newly formed Council then stated that the offices of Secretary, Comptroller and location of next year's CCLC were open to the floor.

The office of president already had three candidates, which caused some discussion as to the legality of the candidate from Skagit Valley College, Spence Sherwood. It had been decided that the deadline for applications for office was May 1. Two schools filed, and were protesting the addition of the new candidate the day of the Conference. It was decided that since this was a formation period such an event would be allowed. The meeting was then adjourned, after this decision, into small discussion groups, to reconvene on Saturday morning for election of officers.

After the discussion groups broke up, Gray's Harbor served a fish dinner. The dinner speaker was Washington's Secretary of State "Lud" Cramer. After dinner a semi-formal dance was held with a featured dance band.

At the Saturday meeting of WFCL, the candidates for the offices were nominated with Gary Smith of Highline College nominated for the office of Comptroller. The only candidate for location of CCLC was Columbia Basin, as Spokane was nominated, but withdrew. For the office of Comptroller were Gary Smith, Highline, and Marshall Baker, Wenatchee; Secretary were Cyndie Blalik, Peninsula and Kay Johnson, Everett; and Gubatorial candidates were Spence Sherwood, Skagit Valley, Stan Johnson, Yakima and Jack Stengen, Spokane.

The voting was close in only the office of Comptroller, in the other two offices Kay Johnson, Everett and Spence Sherwood, Skagit Valley easily won, but in their winning they presented a western block of schools in the offices of WFCL. If Gary Smith of Highline was elected Comptroller the western block would be complete. In a close race with a difference of 13 votes Marshall Baker of Wenatchee was declared the winner. Baker being elected gave the eastern schools the voice they felt they

You Are Invited — Commencement

All students are invited to attend the Commencement ceremonies scheduled for Friday, June 11, at 8 p.m. in the pavilion. Over 100 graduates will join the faculty in a procession from the student center to the pavilion.

Graduates will be led by Richard Blackwood, sophomore class president. The Processional, "Trumpet Voluntary" by Henry Purcell, will be played on the organ by Laura Wade.

Blackwood will lead the flag salute as the graduates and faculty reach the front of the pavilion. Carl Jensen, Superintendent of the Highline Public Schools, will give the Introductory. The Commencement address will be given by Dr. Glenn Leggett, provost of the University of Washington.

Presentation of the Class of 1966 will be made by Dr. M. A. Allan, president of the college, and presentation of the diplomas will be made by Stanley M. Little, Jr., president of the Highline School District Board of Education. He will be assisted by Charles Carpenter, Dean of Faculty, and Lloyd Messersmith, Dean of Students.

The Highline College Chorus, under the direction of Edward J. Fish, will sing: "I Have Longed for Thy Saving Health" by William Byrd and "In the River of Jordan" arranged by Ralph Hunter. Carolyn Carter will be soloist.

The Recession, "Postludium" by John Dressler, will be played by Miss Wade.

Auction Earns Scholarship Money

"Do I hear the opening bid? I hear one dollar, do I hear two, do I hear two and a-half, sold for three dollars."

For sheer color and excitement, the art auction was easily the highlight of the Spring Arts Festival. The frenzied bidding which lasted almost four hours saw the sale of hundreds of paintings, drawings, sketches, sculpture, and pieces of art, to 200 interested students, teachers, and members of the community.

For the purchase price of the item, one-half of the proceeds went to the artist, and one-half to the Highline College Artist Scholarship fund. With minimum bids starting at 50c, it was a shame to see the products of hours of hard work go for a fraction of the cost of only the materials above. Lucky bidders were able to cart away some really beautiful art pieces for a few dollars apiece. Total receipts were $835, half of which goes for scholarships. Thus, this turned out to be an interesting and truly rewarding afternoon from the financial and art appreciation standpoints.

Graduates!

Rehearsal for Commencement is Thursday, 12:15, in the pavilion.

Don't Forget the Grads

With so many high school and university graduations this last week and next, students forget that Highline College has a graduating class also. The graduates earn an Associate of Arts degree and may end their education there or go on to one of the four-year schools. This graduation class is the fourth one to graduate, actually, but I like to think of it as Highline's "second-first" as this is the first to graduate on Highline's own campus.

Graduates this year have attended the old and new campuses, have suffered the hardships of attending college on a high school campus, in small, leaky portables, with a lounge smaller than the classrooms are now and a library about half that size. Many a Volkswagen was lost in the chuckholes of the gravel parking lot on the old campus and paint shavings were found on all the corner posts of the lot. We had no place to assemble and had to wait until the high school was not using the cafeteria, to hold dances.

This year the luxury of a large gym, two-story library and lounge, classrooms and science labs was fully appreciated by many. Everyone worked from the A.S.B. officers, to the club presidents, to the students themselves, to set precedents on this campus for the years to come. Also the groundwork has been laid for next year's activities such as an IBM dance, a student-opinion column in the Thunder-Word and a homecoming celebration.

On the new campus, Highline has room to stretch out and expand. This year's graduates started the ball rolling and it is up to the students to keep it moving.

Congratulations

On behalf of the entire student body, the Thunder-Word would like to salute this year's social committee for a job well done. What they have done on our new campus this year will help establish a precedent for all of the future social committees of Highline College.

Dale Rutter has been awarded the Co-Arts Scholarship. He was recommended by the art instructional staff and the Co-Arts Club. The requirements for this scholarship are: a college G.P.A. of 2.8, an art class taken while at Highline College (Dale has taken six), talent, and need. Dale has a 3.3 G.P.A., and is interested in becoming a commercial artist.

Georgianne Cox, a freshman at Highline College, has won a scholarship for next year at Seattle University. The scholarship covers one-third tuition for the 1965-66 school year.

Georgianne, a 1964 graduate of Mount Rainier High School, is majoring in biological sciences. She applied for the scholarship, and took a test on April 1. She received this scholarship because of her grade point of 3.00. Georgianne will not be attending Seattle University until fall quarter, and therefore must attend summer school at Seattle University to qualify for her scholarship.

Alan Carter, Bards Larson, and Judy Larson, Highline Junior College students, have been added to the cast of the Greater Seattle, Inc., production of "Bye Bye Birdie" June 18-20 at the Opera House on the Seattle Center grounds.

Rutter Wins Scholarship

Dale Rutter, a freshman here at Highline College, was awarded the annual Co-Arts Club Scholarship. This award is given annually to an art student who is returning to Highline College, the student must show great promise and have a sufficient GPA. The award will aid Dale in pursuing his art career.

Dale is a member and the present vice-president of the Highline College Co-Arts Club. The 1964 graduate of West Seattle High School shows extreme promise in his art works and is very creative. Many of his works, along with the works of the other art students on the campus, were on display and sold in the Co-Arts Club Art Auction which took place at the Highline College Spring Arts Festival, May 20-23.

Dale plans to attend an art school after he receives his degree from Highline. His plans for this summer include several art shows in the Seattle area. He is well versed in all media of the artists. Dale's work shows imagination, creativity, and ability.

Get Annuals During Final Week

Highline Annuals are just around the corner. The 64-65 yearbook will be distributed during finals week at the Highline Bookstore. Ken Stryker, editor, urged all students to purchase their yearbook. Students should be prepared to pay the $2 balance for the annual. The cover is of a green and gold modern design by Steve Okawa. Watch for the daily bulletins for the distribution day and further information.

IRC Club Headed by MacDonald

The International Relations Club, or IRC as it is commonly known, recently held a re-organizational meeting with its new president, Mimi MacDonald.

President MacDonald urges all interested students to attend the club meetings.

Willhight Is Chicago Delegate

Jim Willhight, left, demonstrates the 70,000 lb. Caterpillar D8H which he used in a promotion campaign to win a trophy at the State Mid-Management Leadership Conf.

Jim Willhight recently flew to Chicago via United Air Lines to attend the National Mid-Management Leadership Conference.

The Mid-Management Program, an affiliate of D.E.C.A. (Distributive Education Clubs of America) is a program geared to prepare students for supervisory positions in practically every type of business. The courses are compiled to teach students to think. The program leads to an Associate of Arts Degree with the successful completion of two years of concentrated business and general education study.

The Highline Management Club sent 15 delegates to the State Leadership Conference held in Yakima March 28-30th.

Jim came home with a blue ribbon and a hefty trophy by placing first in the Manufacturing Sales Representative contest. Jim demonstrated a 70,000-lb. Caterpillar D8H which the Caterpillar Company loaned to him in exchange for the promotion. Needless to say, both Jim and Caterpillar were pleased with the outcome.

The National Leadership Conference is held each year in Chicago where those who placed highly in state can compete with those who placed highly in other states.

In Chicago Jim found that the classification of contests did not include the area which he had prepared for and won, so he appeared before the National Board of Directors and gave them the background of the work required to place first at the state level and let them judge whether the contest was worthy of appearing in the national program or not. It will be included next year.

Bishop Explains Foreign Service

by Carolyn Crowe

Mr. Vernon E. Bishop, a United States Foreign Service agent, spoke at Highline College on April 30 in the Lecture Hall. His talk was sponsored by the Highline College Management Club.

Mr. Bishop has just returned from a 2½ year tour of Yugoslavia, and he discussed his experiences. His talk was entitled, "The Life of a Foreign Service Agent".

The Foreign Service is part of the Department of State. It represents the United States with diplomatic and consular offices in other countries. The Foreign Service includes ambassadors, ministers, several grades of Foreign Service officers, Consular agents, and local employees. It maintains offices and residential quarters in all parts of the world.

The Department of State is the oldest executive department of the United States Government. Thomas Jefferson was appointed by George Washington as the first Secretary of State in 1789.

The Department of State is responsible for the conduct of relations between the United States and other countries and international agencies. It recommends policies that the United States should follow in its relations with other nations, and suggests how the policies should be carried out. It publishes public documents about international relations of the United States.

The Department of State directs the Foreign Service, with employees and buildings in most countries of the world. The Department prepares instructions for Foreign Service officers abroad. It issues passports to Americans going to other lands, and visas to persons visiting or emigrating to the United States.

Mr. Bishop mentioned that they like to think of Ben Franklin as the Father of the Department of State.

The United States has 104 Embassies, and six legations. The Department of State is the second smallest department, with bureaus that are responsible for foreign affairs.

There are 30,000 employees. Of these, 10,000 are Americans in the foreign service overseas. All positions in the Foreign Service are competitive. Tests are taken for various positions. Most of the money in their budget is spent on salaries and contributions to the United Nations.

Mr. Bishop has been living in Belgrade, the capital of Yugoslavia. The political sections include the legislation, military, FBI, and labor sections.

Mrs. Hall Honored At Club Party

Mrs. Carol Hall, Highline College's Creative Writing teacher, was presented with a dozen roses as a token of appreciation from her students on May 15 at a celebration party held by the Creative Writing Club. The event was a come-as-you-are dinner party held in celebration of the publication of Excoitation II, the club's annual magazine. It was held at the home of Mike McDermott's parents.

Linda Roby, the president, was presented one of the first publications of the late Theodore Roethke's newest book, "The Far Field."

Everyone at the party contributed to painting an 8 by 15 foot mural in the basement of the McDermott's home.

In the Locker Room

With Larry Leonard
Sports Editor

The spring of '65 has found Highline College excelling in all spring sports.

The '65' Thunderbird track team has achieved the ultimate in its division by winning the Northern Division title. Team depth has been excellent as the T-Birds have compiled points in a majority of meet events. This year's track team has put forth what this column calls a concentrated effort, as the winning of meets has not rested on the shoulders of any particular individual.

However, this track season cannot be analyzed in general terms; it must be analyzed in some detail because a sport is like a machine, very complex and involved.

Don McConaughy's '65' track team was made up of mostly young men who were stepping onto the college cinders for the first time. Returning lettermen were rare as was college experience, but beginning with the W.S.U. Invitational, opponents saw that Highline's young team performed like a group of seasoned veterans.

The depth of the Thunderbirds cannot be mentioned in just passing as it is part of the necessity of a successful team. About the only way to emphasize this element, the way it should be emphasized, is through statistics.

A good starter is the Tri-meet with Centralia and Shoreline, where the T-Birds tallied 180 points to Centralia's 56 and Shoreline's 42 and scored in every event. The first meet in May proves to be another good example of Thunderbird depth. In this Tri-meet with Everett and Grays Harbor the T-Birds gathered 70 points tallying in 15 of 17 events and tallying 45½ points, but also established two new meet records. Highline's medley relay team consisting of Mike Reese, Jay Kapsandy, Frank Pauley, and Larry Prout recorded a new winning time of 9:36.4 and Dave Anderson took the 2 mile run setting a new mark of 9:45.6.

Depth is one factor necessary for a successful season as is experience whether high school or college, but before either of these factors can be had, there must be what is called plain skill.

It is not the purpose of this column to isolate any particular individual for a particular skill or success, nor is it the place of an evaluation of this type to do so. For the most part a dedicated athlete finds team victory and seeing other team members win reward enough for his efforts. I do not think that this column would overglorify the image of an athlete to say that an athlete knows when he has put out the maximum and if he has done this it is enough recognition—self-recognition to himself. The success that Highline achieved in track and field was possible because Highline had the individual skill and these two factors, depth and experience, complement each other and go hand-in-hand.

Golf

In looking back upon the '65' golf season, there is one factor that stands out—improvement.

This column does not think it is right or appropriate to classify a team as being a loser because it fails to make the championship play.

Improvement can be based on either winning or losing, failing or succeeding. However, in athletics, especially in a game such as golf, where so much is based on each individual shot, you cannot base success or failure on winning or losing.

Improvement must be based on what each player does each week, and in golf where the lowest wins, if a team shoots in the high 300's early in the season it is not disastrous, but this kind of a mark late in the season will not do.

Highline definitely has shown some improvement during the past season. For example, when the T-Birds played the Skagit Valley "Cardinals" early in the season, they shot a 352 with a majority of the "Highliners" hitting in the high 80's. Later in the season on April 20, the T-Birds again faced Skagit Valley and they fired a 310 to Skagit's 339.

This proves my point. The more strokes a golfer can knock off his game, the better off he will be in match play. This is improvement in our way of thinking.

Highline may have lost out in the eyes of some in the win and loss department, but they also won in experience and improvement.

Tennis

Highline College's netters have been equally successful on the courts as the T-Bird golfers and trackmen. The high flying netmen had an excellent win-loss record, winning 5 and losing 2 on the season.

The T-Birds have shown a good over-all strength, taking the majority of their singles and doubles matches in their win matches. Showing particular strength, the Highline netters had three shut-outs during the season, shutting out Everett JC, Seattle Pacific, and Skagit Valley.

Both the season record and the fact that both of the T-Bird losses were to non-conference teams is proof enough that the Thunderbirds are the strongest in the division as a team.

Highline's winning season was climaxed by a surprisingly poor showing in the State Tennis meet held in Yakima on May 21 and 22. Howard Jensen and Pete Kwast were the only T-Birds to advance to the second round in the singles and a Jensen-Kwast doubles team was the only Highline representative in the doubles competition.

All in all, Highline can be proud of its tennis team and its record the past season.

Dear Editor:

I disagree with that uncouth writer on the Thunderword Staff who recently downgraded Seattle's only claim to recognition in boxing's dying world. According to the WBA

Eddie Cotton was ranked fourth; however, in the hearts of Seattleites he is and always will be ranked first. Eddie Cotton, in our opinion, deserves a week.

Letter to The Editor

by John Bruce Thomason

The recently-fought and heavily-contested heavyweight title fight between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston is a prime example of professionalism in sports. Numerous boxing enthusiasts paid from several dollars to several hundred dollars to witness this complete one-sided affair. The bout or more suitably titled "show" lasted for the duration of a better part of one minute. This writer's complaint is not that of the duration of the fight but more notably that of the sport in general.

At one time boxing was one of the major collegiate and professional sporting events in the world. Today, boxing is still found professionally and among the amateur ranks. The pugilistic world is still drawing a wide array of spectators, however, these spectators for the most part are following the professional ranks and not that of the amateur. One often wonders just exactly why an athletic event is sponsored and supported nationally as a professional sport and not as a local or amateur event. The answer is easily obtained.

Boxing is still found on the local level, however, as far as patronage goes its enthusiasts are not interested unless one of the rank amateurs is supposedly "stardom bound." The Golden Gloves and several boxing schools are now the lone remnants of the once popular smokers and fight clubs. No longer do colleges carry an extensive program of boxing. Twenty years ago boxing was one of the major attractions in college athletics with numerous schools providing intercompetition between teams. Has boxing been abolished in college, prep schools, etc., because of a lack of enthusiasm or is it because it is an extremely dangerous sport? Statistics would probably prove that an equal number of professional boxers and amateurs have been killed in the sport. However, statistics for what they're worth would also show that a greater number of would-be boxers were killed in alley fights, bar room brawls or heart attacks.

Many over-the-hill fighters are found punchy, poverty stricken and ruined for life. Again there are found those extremely wealthy and a credit to the sport. Why then the big fuss about the sport? Simply this. Is boxing going to continue to draw multi-million dollar gates and be called everything from farce to fix or is it going to regress ten to twenty years and be considered a truly fine athletic event as it was a decade ago?

It appears destined that unless something is done, the heavyweight division will continue to stage million dollar shows of two to three rounds. This in itself could possibly with some fortitude be stomachable. But with the usual two men fighting the now prevalent rematches, chances of seeing improvement in the sport are slim. With the initial title fight and lapse until the rematch the heavyweight division is held and unchallenged for a year. With this lapse in title defense a period of two years may elapse. During this extension of time many up and coming contenders never gain a chance at the title and can die an aging death waiting.

Tennis Girls Split With Skagit

Interest in tennis by woman athletes and the help of Mrs. Margie Command, physical education instructor at Highline College, have helped to start tennis competition for interested women athletes.

In their first trial of their new program on Saturday, May 8, at the Glacier High School courts, the Highline girls split a trial match with Skagit Valley. Highline's Judy Reith defeated Skagit's Joan Barker 6-3, 6-1 in singles and Highline's Marcia Skellenger and Linda Putnam lost to Skagit's Sally Clossen and Sandy Tenneson 6-3, 6-4 in doubles.

On Tuesday, May 11, the Highline Co-eds saw action at Tyee High School in a match which Tyee won 4-1.

Dear Editor:

Another college baseball season is over; the semi-pro and softball seasons are beginning. I urge all the Highline ball players that were disappointed when the college failed to have a team again this year to play this summer. After 4 seasons of being in the Community College Conference (and very successfully) maybe next year the Thunderbirds will have a team.
