Bishop Explains Foreign Service

Mr. Vernon E. Bishop, a United States Foreign Service agent, spoke at Highline College on April 30 in the Lecture Hall. His talk was sponsored by the Highline Management Leadership Club.

"Mr. Bishop has just returned from a 5 1/2 year tour of Yugoslav, and he discussed his experiences. His talk was entitled, "The Life of a Foreign Service Agent."

The Foreign Service is part of the Department of State. It represents the United States Government in its relations with other countries. The Foreign Service consists of Consular, diplomatic officers, ministers, several grades of foreign service officers and agents, and special officers and employees. It maintains offices in other countries, including embassies, and six legations. The Department of State is the oldest executive department of the United States Government. It carries out the law, and is responsible for the conduct of foreign affairs. It is composed of two parts: the consular and diplomatic sections, and the State Department. It issues passports to Americans going abroad to use as identification when entering countries of the world.

The United States has 104 Embassies and 6 legations. The Department of State is the second smallest department, and is responsible for the conduct of foreign affairs. It has 30,000 employees. Letter to The Editor

With Larry Leonard
Sports Editor

The spring of '69 has found Highline College excelling in all spring sports.

The Thunderbird track team has achieved the ultimate in its division by winning the Northern Division title. Team depth has been excellent as the T-Birds have compiled points in a majority of meet events. This year's track team has put forth what the column calls a concentrated effort, as the winning of meets has not rested on the shoulders of any particular individual.

However, this track season cannot be analyzed in general terms; it is not one that can be classified because a sport is like a machine, very complex and involved.

The Terrace invitational also brought out the competitive spirit in the sport of tennis. Highline's young team performed like a group of seasoned veterans. They stressed the necessity of passing as it is part of the necessity of the game.

Tennis is one factor necessary for a successful season as well as for succeeding. However, in athletics, especially in a game such as tennis, there is one factor that a golfer can knock off and that is skill. This is improvement.

In looking back upon the '69 golf season, there is one factor that stood out. It was an improvement. This column does not think it is right or appropriate to classify a team as a loser whenever it fails to do the things that it should. Improvement can be based on either winning or losing, failing or succeeding. However, in athletics, especially in a game such as golf, where the number is based on each individual shot, you cannot base failure or success on winning or losing.

Improvement must be based on what the player does each week, and in golf where the lowest score wins, if a player shoots in the high 80's, he is not considered to have improved. However, in any sport it is not correct to state that a team has improved except in a manner in which a team has improved.

At one time tennis was one of the major collegiate and professional sport events in the world. Today, tennis is only played professionally and during the amateur ranks. The popularity of the game is still very strong, but more and more boxers are following the sport and not that of the tennis. One often wonders just exactly why an athletic event is sponsored and supported nationally as a professional event and not as a local or amateur event. The answer isower.

Boxing is still found on the local level, however, as an amusement go its enthusiasts are not interested unless one of the rank amateurs is expected to suffer heavily. The Golden Gloves and several boxing schools are now the place where the future boxers are found. There are less remittances of the former professionals and fight clubs. No longer do colleges carry an extensive program of boxing. Twenty years ago boxing was one of the major attractions in a city; it was a place where school programs were provided for intra-school students providing inter-school defense teams.

The T-Birds have shown a good over-all strength, taking the season record and the fact that both of the T-Bird basket teams have not conceding teams a successful season. The T-Birds have won three games over the season.
