COUNSELORS FOR STUDENT INDEPENDENCE

What does it mean to be independent? What does it mean to be a counselor? The two are really inextricable, not only because counselors need to be independent and think for themselves, but also because a counselor's ability to make judgments and decisions can affect the student's life.

Students, especially those who are in the early stages of their college careers, may find it difficult to make the necessary decisions to be independent. They may feel that they are not being given enough guidance, or that they are being given too much. They may feel that they are not being given enough information, or that they are being given too much. They may feel that they are not being given enough support, or that they are being given too much.

The role of a counselor is to help students make the necessary decisions to be independent. This includes helping students to identify their strengths and weaknesses, to set realistic goals, to develop a plan of action, and to make decisions about their future.

One of the most important roles of a counselor is to help students to understand that they are the ones who are in control of their lives, and that they are the ones who are responsible for their decisions. This means that they are the ones who are responsible for their successes and their failures. It also means that they are the ones who are responsible for their choices and their consequences.

In order to be independent, students need to be able to think for themselves. They need to be able to make decisions, and they need to be able to accept the consequences of those decisions. They need to be able to think critically, to evaluate information, and to make decisions based on that information.

Counselors can help students to develop these skills by providing them with the information they need, by helping them to think through their decisions, and by allowing them to make decisions on their own. Counselors can also help students to understand that they are in control of their lives, and that they are responsible for their decisions.

In conclusion, counselors play a vital role in helping students to be independent. They help students to understand that they are in control of their lives, and that they are responsible for their decisions. They help students to develop the skills they need to be independent, and they help students to understand that they are the ones who are in control of their lives.
CLOD SCANDLES DISMISSES JOURNALISM PROFESSION

This brings up another point that is even more erroneous than the control of the newspaper. This point has to do with censorship. According to the Clod, the only stories that we print are stories written by journalism students except for letters to the editor which are censored.

To the Clod we say: we are most certain that you would have been covered by a banning editor who was tactfully trying to have an eight page first issue held you shown up with a flood of printable copy.

We ask these journalistic weirdos what they think they have been deprived of the right of freedom of the press, where is all this copy that we are supposed to have censored? It only seems logical that if we had an election of such intellectual material we would have a much improved paper.

According to the crusading Clod publication, “our goal will be to present constructive criticism of all policies affecting school matters.” Does this include demoralizing, scandalous remarks that are just a step away from the truth? Is this satire?

This diabolical display of “constructive criticism” can be compared with only a step away from the “dime ditties”. There has obviously been a green light given by the Clod in stating its goals. Instead of presenting constructive criticism the Clod has done the opposite in presenting destructive criticism by starting at the top and working its way down into the very lowest type of destructive criticism, namely personal ridicule.

This final note blow that the Clod has delivered on behalf of “constructive criticism” will leave a black mark on journalists for evermore.

"The Whole Man"

Dear Editor:

For I spent my whole life learning that you all to give first child and tone to the world you choose. So mid Secretaries in the Adams, many centuries ago. His message is timely today as it was then.

At college students, we are in the process of trying to get our understanding of the world on which we live, and let us not forget the perfecting of our souls, for our whole being is individual, and one who has taken his total personality, body, mind, and soul.

Does it mean that the man who understands the creation, but neglects the creative is a realist man indeed. A Galilean carpenter once said: “let your light so shine before man that they may see your good works, and glorify your father which is in heaven”.

This is not the majority of people, but we reflect the greatness of our creator, and truly be world-makers.

Letters to the Editor

Illegal Publication

Lacks Ethics

The Thunder-Word has found it to have a lack of competition from a notorious student publication that is supposedly labeled the Campus Clod. The Clodsters staff indicates that the Thunder-Word staff doesn’t know news from nonsense, that the adviser is in reality a censor drunk with power, and that T-Word in short is the Edsel of journalism.

Despite their great literary ability and infinite knowledge of school affairs, the Clodsters forget to check their facts. They were unaware that the first paper at any school is not representative of the whole year. It seems to be an eight-pager, but due to printing difficulties, it was cut to four pages, leaving out many stories.

The Clodsters suggested that the Thunder-Word be run without the help of an advisor. That’s just fine—of the students prefer a small New York tabloid (yellow journalism at its best) that throws sex, crime, and gossip about students and teachers.

It seems that the Clodsters feel that a Big Brother in the journalism class is causing them all letters of juicy facts. That’s quite impossible since the T-Word WAS YET RECEIVED A THUNDER-WORD OF LETTER, MUCH LESS A LETTER AT ALL.

Any student who wants to express his opinions to them by bringing his letter to the Clod or the Thunder-Word has two options. Furthermore, any student who wishes to complain to the T-Word or offer constructive criticism of the paper should write to the editor.

Many students are unhappy because the paper comes out only once a month. Fewer than most high school papers, however, it’s quite possible to print every two weeks but this would mean more money from the student body since it only 1854 to put out one two page paper. This does not under newspaper at all.

Sherry L. Scott, editor for two years of the Thunder-Word, will take a new reporting position on the Wee, Oregon paper, starting in December. She graduated from the University of Washington.

Richard Vahl, chief photographer for the Thunder-Word last year, is chief photographer for the University of Washington’s Tyte quarterly and yearbook.

“for the University of Washington on the Bend, Oregon paper”

"It will be the purpose of the editors and the reporters of this monthly publication to act as a needed supplement to the regular rag, which, in case of policy, has not been printed leaves something to be desired." This was the statement of purpose made by the highly controversial “Campus Clod”.

REPORTER: How does the Clod define the word reporter? We define the word reporter as one who dig out the facts on a particular event and reports these facts objectively. Obviously there is quite a large discrepancy between our definition and the Clod’s definition of reporter.

In reference to the “Regular Rag”, as we have been so uniquely referred to by the Clod, it is stated, “first we notice that the one person charged with the responsibility for the newspaper is a teacher and not a student, as might well be expected”. And then the Clod staff of out the good grace of its heart admits that this could be because of school policy.

Again the word reporter pops up. In reference to our definition of the word reporter, a generalization such as that made by this so called Clod reporter would not have been printed even because editorials must have some basis of fact behind them even if they are one person’s opinion.

To elaborate on the generalization made by the Clod in reference to the control of the college newspaper: control is not laid in the lap of any one person. The responsibility rather than the control is the editor’s and he is not controlled, but advised on publication matters as was so falsely inferred by the Clod, the Clodsters bave been all but burned in effigy; that the adviser..."

Three Teams in Dog Fight
By Ben Greene

The Thunderbirds, Vashon's Nine and Southside are the teams to beat in the Intramural Flag Football season.

It's been a great year for the Thunderbirds. They have won every game and have not allowed a single point to be scored against them. The team is led by their quarterback, John Smith, who has thrown for over 1,000 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Vashon's Nine is another strong team in the league. They have a balanced offense and defense, and are led by their running back, Mark Johnson. They have scored over 300 points this season and have only given up 100.

Southside is the defending champion and are looking to repeat as champs. They have a strong defense, led by their linebacker, Bill Smith, who has 15 sacks this season. Their offense is led by their quarterback, Jim Brown, who has thrown for over 1,200 yards and 20 touchdowns.

In the final game of the season, the Thunderbirds will face Vashon's Nine. The game is expected to be a close one, with both teams undefeated.

The Intramural Flag Football season concludes this weekend with the championship game. It's sure to be a thrilling finish to an exciting season.

Highline Runners Remain Undefeated

by Gary Welch

A new "extramural" sport has been added at Highline this year. Under the leadership of Mr. Dick Wooding, former Univ of Washington wrestler, the T-Birds will be added to the Highline High School program. The team meets every day at twelve o'clock and any ex-high school wrestlers or anyone interested in the wrestling team should contact Mr. Wooding.

Hiking Club Has Three Trips

The Hiking Club has launched its most active year with three hikes completed and a mountain demonstration scheduled for November 22.

Highline College students are invited to join the club and register in the college office. The first hike started at the Highline College at 8:00 a.m. The trip was a 3 1/2 mile round trip from Monrich Lake on the Wonderland trail at Lake Rainier.

The second, October 21, was 11 miles from Monrich Lake to Snow Lake.

The third, October 24, was 13 miles from Round Top to Stevens Canyon Road up to the Tahoma Glacier at Lake Rainier. Faculty members attending the third trip were Dr. C. Farrington, Mr. Over, Lilian Gilbert, and Robert Monard.

November 21 a Tacoma mountain demonstration will be given at Sipah Cabin near Carbon Glacier on Mt. Rainier.

The recent appearance of Paul Brown, ex-Cleveland Brown football coach on the Seattle scene has lifted the hopes again and in the past, our town has sought after the Boston Celtics franchise of some caliber to represent the Northwest. Recently the football team is being waged. Paul Brown confirms Seattle as the sixteenth team. Brown believes Seattle would make a temporary home for a professional club. However, the rental of Husky Stadium is very slim for the simple reason that Seattle is tired of being known as the home of the Connie Mack Worlds Champs or the Seattle U basketball team.
