KANEYASO BEGINS SUNDAY

Four Preps Featured
At Kaneyaso Coronation

Vote by IBM Today for Queen

WELL IT'S FINALLY HERE

Four Preps To Appear
The Four Preps will be performing Sunday, January 15 in the Olympic Pavilion. The coronation of our first Kaneyas Queen will take place Sunday night at the management corner. They will be appearing with the noted North Coast Quartet and their latest album "Four Preps in Concert" will be released in February.

KANEYASO is being introduced especially for college students who are the ideal audience. They're socially and politically aware, they're persevering, responsive and honest. And, best of all, they're near your age—we talk the same language and enjoy the same music.

According to them: "We feel the way college students are the ideal audience. They're socially and politically aware, they're persevering, responsive and honest. And, best of all, they're near our age—we talk the same language and enjoy the same music."

THE LONG WAIT

Why has the registration been long and tedious? The students and faculty of Highline College have been waiting for a new academic year to begin. Some students feel frustrated and impatient with the registration process, while others feel that the process is necessary for the orderly functioning of the college.

The registration process is a time of long lines and long faces, but why is it necessary? A college's primary function is to provide education and support to its students. Registration is a crucial part of this function because it ensures that students have the necessary resources and information to succeed. However, the process can be time-consuming and stressful for students and faculty alike.

There are several reasons why the registration process might need to be long and tedious. First, colleges receive a large number of students each year, and the registration process must be able to accommodate this number of students. Second, the process must be designed to ensure that all students have access to the courses and resources they need. Finally, the process must be designed to provide support and assistance to students who may need it.

While the registration process may be long and tedious, it is necessary for the proper functioning of the college. Students, faculty, and the college administration must work together to ensure that the process is fair, efficient, and supportive of the educational mission of the college.

T-BIRDS PLAY ROUGH SCHEDULE

The T-BIRDS' season began with a hard-fought battle against Grays Harbor College. The game was a close one, but the T-BIRDS came out on top with a score of 98-84. The team was led by sophomore center Moorman, who scored 12 points. Chris Martinson and John Shaffer also contributed to the team's victory.

The second game of the season was against the Grays Harbor Rangers. The T-BIRDS were able to run off with the win, scoring 96-80. Best efforts of the night were turned in by Fred Harrison, sophomore forward, and Gary Hunkercr, who scored 16 points. Another factor that might have contributed to the win was the team's ability to out-rebound their opponents, with 13 rebounds by the T-BIRDS.

The third game was against the Olympic Rangers, who could possibly take the championship. The T-BIRDS turned in another twenty-point win by collecting 17 points in the scoring department. Ron Bowen defeated a Ron Webber of the Rangers by a pin, in two minutes and nine seconds. Other T-BIRD's in double figures, Moorman had 67, Chris Martinson and John Shaffer demonstrated a takedown. The other off the perch.

"IS THERE SCHOOL SPIRIT?"

MEET THE

BIRD
CHEER STAFF

GO THUNDERBIRDS GO

School spirit. What is it? Why does it matter? Why would someone want to promote school spirit? What does it mean to have school spirit? It is a question that many people wonder about. The answer is that school spirit is a term that describes the enthusiasm and support that students, faculty, and staff have for their school. It is a way of defining the character and identity of a school.

School spirit is important because it helps to create a sense of community and belonging. It is a way of showing pride in one's school and in the people who belong to it. It is also a way of promoting school pride and tradition.

School spirit can be shown in many different ways. It can be shown through the support of school activities, such as sports, music, and drama. It can also be shown through the participation in school events, such as assemblies, commencements, and school dances.

School spirit is important because it helps to create a sense of unity and belonging. It is a way of showing pride in one's school and in the people who belong to it. It is also a way of promoting school pride and tradition.

The importance of school spirit is not just limited to the students. Faculty and staff also play a role in promoting school spirit. They can help to create a positive school environment and can be role models for students.

In conclusion, school spirit is an important aspect of a school's culture. It is a way of showing pride in one's school and in the people who belong to it. It is also a way of promoting school pride and tradition.

EXECUTIVE CORNER

Fall quarter. 1986 has commenced with the title of class president. Many students have been looking at their duties, and representing the student body. The elections of officers are its own way of reflecting the power of the office and the person who holds it. The executive board will have to deal with a variety of issues.

The opportunity of expanding your responsibilities towards the student body is at the forefront of your mind. The student may either gain or lose. The elections are not the most important thing. The most important thing is the change in responsibilities that can be gained.
