Brown, Maass, North and Mukasa Win Election After Heated Tuesday Forum

By Bobbi Baldwin

Last Tuesday afternoon, a group of students prior to the campaign for the ASB election gathered in the lower lounge of the Student Life Building. The main topic under discussion was the presidency of the ASB. Several candidates ran for the position of ASB President. Of these candidates, John Maass received the most votes.

When the results were finalized, John Maass, Marilyn North and Judy Mukasa were declared the winners. The election was heated due to the intense competition among the candidates.

New Registration Process Declared

The 1968 registration process has been declared by Dr. McFarland, the Registrar and Admissions Officer of Highline College. The new registration process will take place during the hours of 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 3 p.m. There will be no division for this registration between students over the summer.

There will be no time wasted before one division. The process is designed to ensure that returning students have their schedules for the fall quarter before summer begins. The process will cover the cost of enrolling a student in classes, reserving the courses, and then canceling the enrollment. There will also be no withdrawals after registration.

Current Controversial Topics To Be Subject of “Meet The Challenge”

The national problem of the war in Viet Nam will be the topic of discussion in the ASB Forum. The forum will be held in the lounge and will include discussions on issues such as federal programs, land reform, and the importance of the 1968 Issues Conference.

According to Dr. McFarland, the forum will be held in the lounge and will be open to all students interested in discussing the current state of affairs. The forum will be moderated by Harold Booker of the AAUW and Carlton Homes of the Student Council.

The forum will be attended by the candidates for the office of President, John Maass, Marilyn North and Judy Mukasa.

Week Includes Talk On Homosexuality

By John Nelson

The history of homosexuality is buried in the past, and its origins are unknown. However, there have been many efforts to understand the nature and causes of this behavior. One such effort is the recent talk given by Bishop Anderson at the University of Washington.

According to Dr. Cupp, the new patterns of behavior that have emerged in recent years are a result of increased acceptance of homosexuality. However, he also pointed out that some people respond to the issue by raising questions about the nature of love and sex.

In a way, society has stacked the deck. Social mores don't always reflect the true feelings of individuals. Most homosexuals don't stay in therapy long enough to learn more about themselves. However, there is a price to pay on sexual freedom. In the beginning of the development of both of the opposite sex, it is possible to love more than one person. During a period of infatuation, it is possible to love more than one person. However, if this happens, the feelings may fade over time.

Is It Love Or Sex?

Social Science Students Favor

Kennedy And De-escalation

The leading candidates for student president of the Social Science Faculty are those who favor Kennedy and de-escalation. The Social Science Faculty favors Kennedy and de-escalation, with Kennedy receiving the most support. This indicates that the students in the Social Science Faculty support a candidate with a slight leaning in the direction of the right wing of the Republican Party.

Social Science Faculty Favors

Rockefeller And De-escalation

In the Social Science classes, the second place vote was for Rockefeller, with McCarthy receiving the third place vote. While a larger proportion of young people are attracted to Rockefeller, McCarthy appeared to have more appeal among older voters. McCarthy was seen as the candidate who would bring about a change, while Rockefeller was seen as the candidate who would maintain the status quo.

Should Women Be Drafted?

What is your opinion on the drafting of women into the armed forces? The question has been widely discussed, with mixed responses. Should women be drafted into the service to contribute to the man-power of the armed forces, or should they be excluded from such duties? "It's not a good idea to have women in the service," stated one respondent. "I don't think the women would have the ability to fight." Others believe that women should be drafted and serve in non-combat roles. "It's important that women have the opportunity to contribute to the armed forces," said a different respondent. "They can play a vital role in supporting the soldiers on the front lines." The question remains open, with opinions varying widely. It's clear that the issue requires careful consideration to ensure that the armed forces are prepared and equipped to carry out their mission.

Jack Pyle Track Star

Jack Pyle, a 21-year-old sophomore at Highline Community College, made a remarkable comeback in the recent cross-country season. He placed third in the state championship last fall, the first time in school history that a Highline student placed in the top five.

Mike: It provides a name for the school; it also provides an activity that considering the cost of basketball, would it be wise to discontinue the varsity athletic program?

Jack: Yes, it is. But it could be made better if we had more students participating.

Mike: It broadens your horizons and makes them interested in the school. Are you a student in many respects.

Jack: I don't know.

Mike: It brings an interchange of people into the community and the school. What do you think of Highline, a community college which has already an academic part of the school.

Jack: I feel that 1 percent or 99 percent warrants its continuation.

Mike: Do you feel that 5 percent attendance at basketball games would encourage greater activity in this realm?

Jack: Yes, it would. Especially considering the poor attendance at other areas is a matter only the students can decide. But whatever answer can be reached. However, certain conclusions can be reached. The team which ended up on the third place in the state championship was Bellevue, with 23 points. The team that ended up on the ninth place in the state championship was Yakima, with 11 points.

Are Varsity Sports At Highline Worth Continuing?

Recently, during the state basketball championships, an all-star basketball game was played in Yakima. It was essentially a game between Yakima and Bellevue. Both teams had good players, and the game was very competitive. Yakima won, 74-61.

Mike: What do you think of Highline's attendance good?

Jack: It is quite good. There were about 150 people in attendance. If this money was used to provide recreational facilities on campus, an expanded intramural program, or does the varsity athletic program benefit the students of Highline?

Mike: Yes, it does. And I think that considering the cost of basketball, would it be wise to discontinue the varsity athletic program considering the small amount of people.

Jack: Yes, it is. But it could be made better if we had more students participating.

Mike: I support the present activities as they are now arranged and one conclusion is that varsity sports at Highline bring only a limited benefit to the students.
Negro Athletes Say, 'No Prejudice Here'

By Dan Lando

Negro athletes at Highline College recently expressed some doubt about the racial harmony which prevails for athletic contests in the Northwest. "We've heard about the Northwest, but we've never seen it," said a Negro athlete at the University of Washington, a school where Negro athletes have been treated with great respect. "We know that the Northwest is a great place for Negroes, but we don't know if it's true in practice," said the athlete.

The prime evidence which points out the unbiased attitude of the Northwest is the track meet at the University of Washington. "We've never seen a Negro athlete run a mile at the University of Washington," said the athlete. "We've never seen a Negro athlete win a race at the University of Washington," said the athlete. "We've never seen a Negro athlete break a record at the University of Washington," said the athlete.

The Negro athletes of the current year were presented on the varsity program. The Negroes. Because of the reverse bias, the Negro athletes of Highline recently practiced at the four-year institution.
