Bible is VP of SWEA

Kathleen Bible was recently elected as the new President of SWEA (Student Women's Educational Access). Bible, recently appointed by psychologists, is now in charge of the Highline College chapter of SWEA. Bible was elected by unanimous vote of the SWEA members and has been serving a leadership role since her senior year. Bible was appointed by the psychology faculty as a result of her continuous efforts in the SWEA organization. She has been serving as the President of the organization for the past two years.

Veterans plan winter meetings

The Veterans Club of HCCC has been planning for their winter meetings. They have been meeting at the same location every other week and are planning to meet at noon every Thursday. The meetings are open to all members of the club and are free to attend. They are planning to have guest speakers and discussions on various topics related to veterans' issues. The meetings are open to all interested individuals and are free to attend.

Mini health fair termed success

Amini health fair was recently held on campus with an excellent turnout. The fair was held in the Student Center and was well attended. The fair included various booths and activities related to health and wellness. Attendees were able to obtain information on various health issues and were able to participate in various activities related to health and wellness.

Pharmacology on state winter

Pharmacology classes are being offered on campus during the winter. The courses are open to all students and are conducted by experienced pharmacology instructors. The courses cover various topics related to pharmacology and are designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the subject. The courses are conducted on campus and are open to all interested students.

Biology class being revised

The biology class is currently being revised and will be conducted in the spring. The class will be conducted in a more interactive format and will include various activities related to biology. The class will be conducted on campus and will be open to all interested students.

Counseling Center assists students

by Carol Wilde

A teacher who works in the area of counseling is often asked to describe the Center here on campus. The Center is the most appropriate word to use when referring to the Counseling program. Any student or campus should be able to agree with that. There is a lot more behind the Center’s operations beside the student-counselor appointments.

The counselors start off their contact with students before they even enter the college as such. To help potential students prepare for college life is just the beginning of a somewhat varied relationship with the students. In the effort to help students before they enter the campus, the counselors go over the admission and entrance procedures. They discuss possible classes and courses that the student may be interested in and if necessary, supply maps and directions for getting around the campus. At this stage they act more or less as a clearing house for people to get to know more about the college.

After the student has registered and is about to become a part of the campus life, the counselors and the Center take on a different role. At this point they become an informational resource, not just for courses and information, but for anything everything that has to do with college life. Information is involved and is about to become a part of the student’s life. They help people who may be in a state of depression due to school or home life. They try to help people with problems dealing with growth or identity and life style. They deal with self-understanding and relationship problems such as marriage.

Along with the personal counseling, they work with agencies and referrals from agencies such as the Veterans and the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation. Many of the counselors act as consultants and guest speakers at community programs and workshops, and many are involved with professional and faculty activities including inservice training programs. Among these agencies are Alcoholism, Women’s Assertive Training and Mental Health programs.

The personal counseling relates to student goals. It is felt that if a student doesn’t know who he is, he probably won’t know what he wants in terms of his life and future. This segment of the counseling explores just what a person is going to do with his life, getting to know who you are and looking at values interests and related talents.

Testing is another function of the Center. If it is the formal point for the GED test (General Equivalency Diploma), the GEC program at the high school Washington Pre-College Entrance exam and any other placement tests.

The educational counseling is a response to crisis or problems that face the students face with school. Such problems may include a problem with a class, a personal conflict with an instructor, a decision to switch one’s educational goals. During such consultation, strategies for academic goals are discussed between the counselor and the student.

Most counseling is based on a one-to-one basis, but counselors who not only act as consultants but as advisors, too, that the group situations are a very important part of the counseling. In such circumstances, students can not only relate to the counselors but share feelings with other people having similar problems. Workshops are offered throughout the year which specialize in this type of encounter group atmosphere. These workshops are not only open to the students, but members of the community are encouraged to participate. Two of the most recent workshops offered through the Counseling Center were Behavioral Control, ‘Set to deal with your fears and Group for the Formerly Married’. To be recited. Behavioral Control dealt with such topics as marriage, fear of specifying and personal situational fears. The Group for the Formerly Married considered the reactions to the dissolution of a marriage, reactions to the death of a loved one and adjustment to loneliness.

With the Counseling structure, the counselors become program managers. They are responsible to work with new foreign students. They manage and supervise the counseling programs and the new computer system. They also manage and supervise the student service instructions of the Counseling.

At this point, being a counselor is a very rewarding job. The counselor becomes a link within the growth of the student. The Center on the campus is a very rewarding job. The counselor becomes a link within the growth of the student. The Center on the campus.

James Scott moves to new state job

James Scott, associate dean of occupational education at Highline Community College, was named the first director of the new state Criminal Justice Training Commission last week. He was selected by the commission from a slate of 26 applicants who half of them from other states, according to Attorney General Slade Gorton, chairman of the commission. The former Spokane policeman will take over an head of the staff of the five month old commission January 1.

Scott, formerly a member of the old Law Enforcement Officers Training Commission, was instrumental in organizing the law enforcement program at Highline Community College which has attracted many police offers from Seattle and other agencies.

An associate dean, he now directs programs in law enforcement, corrections, industrial security and many other areas. These include eight programs in business; eight programs in engineering technology; three in health occupations; six in secretarial occupations.

Team finishes season with 2-13-1 record

by Cheryl Day

In terms of wins and losses, Highline Community College's first "varsity" soccer team found its initial season disappointing. As far as school backing and organization are concerned, things were frustrating. But it can never be said that 1974 was not an education for Coach Gary Rector and his band of T-Bird boosters.

Rector found the rigors of being a 19-year-old coach often disagreeable. He assumed his duties after the season was already underway, didn't help any. Highline, facing stepped-up varsity teams from other community colleges, suffered through a 2-13-1 season. But we worked good as a team toward the end of the season," Rector recalled, and wound up in third place in their league.

That late-season improvement plus the hope of making soccer a varsity sport at Highline -- leaves some promise for the future.

The big step of acquiring varsity status, "We got it through the school that soccer is a sport and therefore be recognized. In almost every high school it has varsity status, and also in every other community college," said Rector. "The season was a successful one from the standpoint of organizing fields and referees, and the Community College's soccer.

"If the season gave the players a taste of competition, it was a step up for some of the players and a step down for others. We're playing in a very uneven division, and the players have to learn to play in any situation that continued.

"We're continuing pushing for it to be a varsity sport -- we'd like to leave it for the high school and new players too.

Trivia Quiz

by Mike Saunderson

As a new feature in the Thunder Word is "Trivia Questions." This week's feature deals with college basketball.

If you get 8-10 correct you can speak highly of your knowledge of being a trivia expert.

If you get 6-7 correct you're pretty smart but need practice.

If you get 4 and 5 correct you're average.

If you get 1 and 2 correct you're way out.

1. Doug Collins was the number one draft choice of the NBA in 1973. Who was the last white person to be the number one selection of the NBA draft?

2. Who was the center on the 64-65 UCLA's championship teams? This pivotman stood a means 7' 5".

3. Elgin Baylor graduated from Seattle University. What college did the "Super-Chief" attend before transferring to the Seattle school?

4. Oregon State was the last school to win the Pac-Eight basketball championship in 1966. Intercepts UCLA's string of titles. Who was their Big Seven-father?

5. Small colleges have gained more respectability in the Pac-Eight basketball competition in recent years. One year, Kentucky State was blessed with a five forwad nicknamed the "Machine." What is her name?

6. Match the following college coaches to their teams.

7. What team has won the most N.I.T. basketball titles?

8. One of the oddities of college basketball happened a few years back. From a small mid-western college, came a 6'6" prov. person. She was drafted by the San Francisco Warriors. What is her name?

9. Moon Malone out of St. Peterburg school was drafted and signed to a multi-year contract with the Denver Nuggets of the ABA. Who was the first high school player ever drafted by the NBA?

10. Name the guard who plays for University of Maryland's basketball team and is considered one of the finest prospects in the world today?
Hicks, veterans hassle at TCC

If all of Congressman Floyd Hick's campaign appearances recently, he wouldn't have counted to re-election the way he did.

The school has a lot of veterans. They asked about GI Bill hang-ups and college at Madison General Hospital. Hick's replies failed to satisfy either party.

As asked why the GI Bill had taken so long to work, Hick replied that the administration was having a hard time justifying a $220 per cent raise for federal employees and a 28 per cent increase for veterans.

Journalism class faces challenge in John Scott

John Scott, new vice-president of Radio Liberty, will be a "live" final in Journalism 311 next week as he guest in a press conference in the classroom.

Students will question Scott on current world problems during the test, then write news stories, editorials or commentary based on Scott's comments.

He retired from Time Magazine more than 30 years of service as reporter, editor, writer and lecturer.

In October of 1963 he was named to his present post with Radio Liberty, the former Radio Free Europe.

For seventeen years he made in-depth studies of crisis areas throughout the world for Time. His fluency in four languages makes him especially qualified for foreign assignments and enables him to interview people from all walks of life in order to balance opinions and report the complete story.

He has written several books, the latest being "Deportation" (published in two German) and his first assignment, "Voice of Liberty." "Deportees Through Soviet Eyes" published today.

For more than 30 years Radio Liberty has been broadcasting into the Soviet Union in Russian and 17 other languages.

Radio Liberty hears from its listeners in Spain and Germany, Radio Liberty hears from its listeners in Switzerland and France and comments programs to Moscow. Tuched and Deep into Siberia, to an estimated audience of 4 million adults whose listening habits according to surveys vary greatly from region to region (at least once a month is occasional). 150 cities per week which may be too late for the student whose paper is due tomorrow.

This computer would greatly reduce processing costs of new materials. Presently it costs the U.S. Congress $20.00 -- $30.00 to process a single item. The computer would cut those costs to approximately $2.00 per item. The computer would also handle bibliography files, holding information, authority files, input of local cataloging information, and vocabulary data.

It's just possible that you may have missed some construction going on around campus. The new buildings being constructed will be for the expanded and new vocational and occupational programs.

Some of the occupational programs will be offered in summer, with the new buildings including several classrooms, laboratories, service stations, and a flight simulator.

Special equipment planned for the new buildings are a crime lab, hospital operating room, mock courtroom, mock interior of a jet transport, and a flight simulator.

GREAT DECISION-1965

Highline Community College will offer its third annual "Great Decisions" course (Political Science 211, Room No. Ho 74) at nearby retirement homes for six weeks during the Winter Quarter, commencing on Monday, February 5th. The purpose of the course, as in the past, will be to familiarize students with important decisions confronting American foreign policy makers on some of the most troublesome issues and problem areas of our time.

Each course will commence at 3 P.M. and continue until 4 P.M. for all students.

Minority Clubs plan futures

Minority clubs are just trying to give each other moral support," commented minority affairs director Lee Pifer in discussing projects that the different minority groups might plan to accomplish.

Many of the minority groups are concentrating on ideas for the cultural exchange which is slated to take place sometime in February.

"We (minority affairs office and B.C.C.)" would like to work in conjunction with B.Y.O.W. (mural artists of Washington State) on the project," commented Lee Pifer. A model for the proposed Longhouse can be found in the library.
Speed kills

It took nearly all Fall Quarter to get students started but it did happen, at least that’s a start.

The student senate is beginning to form task forces and committees. As a concerned student I’ve been a member of several committees and until recently have been disappointed by the lack of initiative our student body officers have shown.

The senate meetings are running a little smoother than before. Mike Sanderson, Vice President, ABSCC and chairman of the senate is gaining self-confidence and raising the meetings better.

Most senators are now thinking about the issues they are voting on and taking a personal interest.

It is dangerous to use the word glibly in talking about the problems on this campus. For many students, who have jobs or families, school is their extra curricular activity and they can’t be expected to come in and talk anyway.

Remembering this last point I cannot really in good conscience hesitate in using the word apathy in talking about the problems of our student body officers have showed.

Mike Saunderson, Vice President, ASHCC and chairman of the senate meetings are a good example of initiative our student body officers have showed.

Neither of the student senate members, or who could give direct answers to direct questions. Even Ford was not questioned by senators in Salt Lake City recently would never get a yes or no answer when asked whether he would sign the Vietnam bill.

Veterans aren’t looking for a handout. They are seeking opportunities. Some are married with young families. Some are working part time jobs. Others are going to school. Their lives work well. All are one way or another trying to get an education under less than ideal circumstances.

A lot of us are rapidly and justifiably getting confused by what Ford means by “initiatory.”

Vets win

After about 30 months of working for a new, up to date G. I. Bill we have finally succeeded in getting the many obstacles faced in the past.

First the bill bounced in and out of committees for a number of months. Then a bill was finally agreed on by the committee members and was presented to the House of Representatives.

This bill was killed on a point of order so back in committee was presented to the House and Senate agreed on a good education assistance bill for Vietnam Era Vets.

Just when all was on a positive move Ford decided the bill was inflationary and vetoed this bill.

This bill was then sent back to both houses for an overide consideration. On Dec. 6, 1974 the House of Representatives voted 26 to 18 TO OVERRIDE and THE Senate voted 61 to 1 to override.

Cliches at Christmas

by Cyndi Tann

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." That is one of the popular phrases that spring up around this season. Then I look around me and I don’t see peace. Instead, I see strife, competition, inflation, wars and threats of war. I see people dying, not peacefully. I see a struggle to fight death. Doctors are making sure that a cure could be found for cancer. The government is preparing sailing standards.

But people continue to die and feel lonely. Why is Christ-""mass supposed to be anyway? There is no peace, I keep searching in that book called the Bible. It tells of strife and war. It doesn’t promise peace in the world! It never does. So what is that phrase supposed to mean?"

I then stumbled upon it: "These things I have spoken to you, that in me you may have peace. In the world you shall have tribulation, but take courage; I have overcome the world. In peace isn’t what I thought it was. It’s in an individual’s heart. That’s why that promise was given during Christ’s birth. It’s only when we believe in Him.

by Cyndi Tann

Poor leadership

It looks like it’s almost official; one way or another, President Ford has been hinting for the past few months he would veto the Vietnam Bill presently awaiting his signature. His reason for not signing it? Inflationary!

Why is the defense budget of this country higher than at any point in history? Who are we afraid of so terribly much that we must maintain a military presence second to none in the world?

Why are we supporting the Republic of South Vietnam with millions of dollars when the war is over as a result of the Communist Vietnamese government to be a part of the world? It is ironic that the most powerful, richest country in the world doesn’t take better care of its own?

Ford must quit promising aid to everyone in the world and initiate programs which will do something for the people of this country. He must start getting this country back together.

It is sad that certain elected officials in this state have little genuine concern regarding people of their state. Representatives Blake Garson and Floyd Hicks spoke at this school and Tacoma Community College recently. General consensus followed the same vein. Both via politically motivated and little or no concern with issues facing the populace today.

Neither of these politicians could or would give direct answers to direct questions. Even Ford was not questioned by representatives in Salt Lake City recently would never get a yes or no answer when asked whether he would sign the Vietnam Bill.

Veterans aren’t looking for a handout. They are seeking opportunities. Some are married with young families. Some are working part time jobs. Others are going to school. Their lives work well. All are one way or another trying to get an education under less than ideal circumstances.

Backfield is QB's best friend
by David Pearson

Why do we 'chicken quarter- backs' give the football away to the players in back of us? That's a good question with an even better answer. Our quar- terbacks don't pass all of the time; they run as well. Initially, that's most of the football game. It provides a running yardage, at times, the offensive backfield's skills, each backfielder has his own skill. That's what makes each man required to have speed, durability, coordination, agility, durability, coordination, aggressiveness and lots of courage. Any man with these aspects can play effective ball. However, a running back doesn't always run. Many times, he blocks for the quarterback who takes the running back's chances. A man who has to make the run, must be able to catch a pass and run with it.

Quarterback players come in all sizes. In the NFL, the quarterback has a strong running back that's 6'1" and weighs 198 lbs. Kiffin Ferguson can really scramble. Hard to catch, that's the name of the running game. On the other hand, one of the biggest men in the history of football was a 6'6" fullback called Bruno Nagurski. He was the size of these two, each quarterback has his own skill, his own characteristics the football game so interesting. You can't score a touchdown on your own twenty-yard line. The two minute warning has been given to both teams. Behind four points, you've never had 10 yards to go for the touchdown. Lining up, you are on the field. Running up the middle of the scrimmaging line. Getting six yards, the next play is a flip-out to the left halfback. Passing long, the right and gets to their twentyfive yard line. Now, you've got to block for the fullback as he goes through the scrimmaging line. Getting the first down at their ten, you get the ball for an off guard run. Down to their three, you're tackled hard. Here it is! You're going to try for the dream play. Taking the handoff from the quarterback, you hit the line, penetrate to the two, your own two, your own. You drive for the end zone. Did you make it?

Grapplers start season; Maky and Neese win
by Greg Bennett

Tom Maky and Carl Neese opened up the 1974-75 Highline wrestling season with first places when the Thunderbirds competed in the Eastern Washington Invitational last Saturday at Cheney. Maky (134) and Neese (142) were just two of the fine performers for Highline in the individuals meet.

Larry Erickson (125), and Pat Dowling (180) captured second places, while Lance Jerrittson (130), George Paulus (175), and Chris Saez (185) wrestled their way to thirds.

Coach Wooding, who has a 'darn good squad,' likes his chances on placing first in the conference this year. "We're stronger than last year," he said. "We're not as good as last year, that's for sure. We're not as good as last year, that's for sure." Wooding has Maky returning at 185 lbs, Maky returning at 185 lbs. We've got to be as good as last year, that's for sure. Coach Wooding also recruited a couple of state champions and a grapper from Japan. Jim Hult of Tumwater and Jon Wallack of Tye were the state champs, with Wallack getting the top notch twice. At 115 will be Heron Nara, who captured third in the the Japan Nationals.

Murray fifth in finals; Highline takes second

by Greg Bennett

Spokane and Highline totally outdistanced the remainder of the field as both teams fought off each other in the N.W.A.C.C. Conference Championship Meet at Seward Park, November 5. Spokane, by taking the first four spots, and the sixth through eighth places, defeated the stubborn Thunderbirds to capture the first place trophy.

Rick Winkel was the meet in a time of 13.46. Tim Murray helped Highline win the second place trophy when he placed fifth in a time of 20.40, his best time at Seward Park.

Murray also beat Brian Goates of Spokane, a feat he had been able to do only when they were teammates at Haten High School. Goates placed second in a time of 20.40.

The Thunderbirds, who Coach McCroomh underphotos the best cross country team in seven years, captured five first places, one third and the 711 second place in the Championship.

GI Bill enrollments of 15 million in October were nine percent above last October's and 11 percent above October 1972, the Veterans Administration reported today. November enrollments will top October's if the normal pattern of peak enrollments during November and April holds into this year, VA officials specified.

October trainees included 500,000 veterans and servicemen who studied at the college level, 18 percent more than in October the previous year. Another 300,000 trainees were enrolled in below college level schools or on job training, causing only a slight increase from October last year.

Training has increased each year since June 1966 when the current GI Bill went into effect. A total of 4.1 million — or 11.2 percent of the eligibles — received benefits under the current GI Bill. This compares to the 2.5 million — 9.4 percent of the eligibles — under the Korean Conflict Bill and 1.5 million — 4.7 percent of the eligibles — under the original GI Bill.

Single veterans going to school fulltime under the GI Bill can receive $228 monthly, while veterans with dependents draw additional benefits. Pending legislation would increase these benefits. Pending legislation would increase these benefits.

When Highline Community College's Winter Quarter gets rolling in January, so will a new selection of motion pictures in H.C.C.'s film series. A variety of films are slated to be presented, they are:

Executive Action (Jan. 8): A fictionalized account of how President Kennedy might have been the victim of an assassination conspiracy. Heading the conspiracy are Burt Lancaster, the late Robert Ryan, and Will Geer.

Little Big Man (Feb. 12): Dustin Hoffman's brilliant portrayal of Jack Crabb, sole survivor of Custer's last stand at Little Big Horn, who becomes an Indian braves and Fixes Skinners amongst other occupations. A masterpiece of a movie, not to be taken lightly. Pairs Damay. Chief Dan George and Martin Balsam co-star.

Marathon (Jan. 23): First team effort of Eliot Gould and Donald Sutherland as two out for revenge in the midst of the Korean War. Del as hilarious as the television series, but still worth a few chuckles. Sally Kellerman as Hot-Lips and Robert Duvall as Myr. Burns co-star.

McQueen, Hot-Lips headline film series

LITTLE BIG MAN

EXECUTIVE ACTION

"Executives never before endured this!"

New Centurions (Jan. 28): The violent, realistic tale of life in Vietnam which paints a picture of how it really is, with no punches pulled. Fine performances by George C. Scott and Stacy Keach.

1776 (Mar. 12): As the United States 200th-anniversary approaches, this joyous musical brings the History of America alive before your eyes. See Ben Frankin, Thomas Jefferson and the making of the Declaration of Independence like you've never seen them before. Ken Howard, William Daniels and Howard Da Silva star in this enjoyable movie musical.
HCC racks up five big wins

by Colette Daigle

In their second bout with Shoreline Community College November 10th, Highline's Women's Volleyball team avenged an earlier loss to the northwest team. The Thunderbirds lost to Shoreline only five days before, a defeat that had put them in a two-way tie for the first place position. In the second contest between the two teams, Highline won the first game 15-3, but the second 14-13, and won the third 15-4 taking the match.

Ferrying up to Port Angeles November 15th, Highline's spikers beat Peninsula CC in a two-game match. Five days later, the Thunderbird team beat Green River in another two-game match with scores of 13-11, and a close 18-16.

Olympic Community College showed Highline its second defeat of the season in a match on November 15th. The Bremerton team came from behind to beat the Thunderbirds 13-11, and 15-12.

To a group of women basketball coaches, started a Valiant effort in the first game of a November 16th match with Seattle CC. The first game was lost 11-15, and Broomell put in her first-string which was both of the succeeding games that took the match.

A November 19th match scheduled with Peninsula ended in a win by default for the Highline team, when the Port Angeles line-up failed to make the game-time deadline. Arriving three hours late, Peninsula found that most of the Highline players had already left. The Thunderbirds suffered their third defeat when Everett beat Highline November 19th. Five of Broomell's players couldn't attend the match, and although Highline won the first game 15-14, they dropped the last two 12-16 and 15-16, completely falling apart the last game.

The Highline vs. Bellevue match of November 16th, was rescheduled for December 3rd. (See accompanying article.) As a concluding finale of their 1974 season, Highline's Women's Volleyball team will travel to Bremerton this weekend for the Washington State Volleyball Tournament. In a series of matches that will occupy most of Saturday and Sunday, the Thunderbirds will compete with thirteen other Community Colleges from around the state for top honors.

Coach Broomell, optimistic about the tournament and her team this year, exclaims, "We have a lot of talent, and have had tremendous attendance."

A slight misunderstanding

by Colette Daigle

A misunderstanding between coaches, resulted in the playing of a practice game instead of the regular league game scheduled between Highline and Bellevue Community Colleges on Monday the 25th of November.

The match, held in Highline's pavillion, got off to a very late start and the netters ended up sharing the facility with the men's varsity basketball practice. The women's team coaches were keeping pads placed as interested观察者 to the men's team which was practicing drills in the adjacent court.

At the first whistle blow, the Bellevue team assumed a defensive football-like stance. With hands on knees and menacing looks on faces, they awaited the serve from the Highline side. With the second blow of the referee's whistle, Highline sent the ball across the net. For the first five serves the Bellevue team failed to return the ball and the Thunderbirds accumulated a sizeable lead. A lengthy volley on the sixth serve resulted in the loss of the ball to Bellevue. The serve was then exchanged four times until the blue and white clad Bellevue team scored their first point.

Their next serve failed to clear the net and Highline regained the point-making position. Racking up six more points, the Thunderbird offense was highlighted by a brilliant smash to the Bellevue side and a gentle lob right over the heads of the opposing players and into a hole in the Helmsmen defense. A menacing serve put Bellevue back to the serving position. They sailed it over the heads of Highline's team and lost the serve. Both teams failed to make a point during their next chances at scoring.

The next Thunderbird serve gave that team a point but their next chance yielded the ball to Bellevue who sent it soaring over the net to gain their second and final point of the game. Highline's netters dominated the serving position the rest of the game during which an attempt to recover a wild ball by the Helmsmen resulted in three of the players "spilling" in the middle of the net.

The final score: 2-0, Highline. And that was only practice.
Covering the sports world in four, short minutes

Bruce King, KOMO Sports Director

In a four-minute news package, KING's Bruce King had five stories to tell -- high school basketball, Sonic sports, Husky football, the Seattle Sounders, and National Hockey League (NHL) hockey. But he wasn't even finished.

"I've finished telling you about what's going on," he said. "But I've got to tell you something more -- something that's happening during the day and will affect you."

"If you don't like what you hear, you're in the wrong business," King concluded, "but I'll tell you why I'm here."

Ski diving can be fun
by David Pearson

Swimming is great fun; but does anyone like to swim under the water? Many people enjoy the sport and business of diving. Diving is a sport because of the thrill of overcoming curiosity. Many want to learn how to dive for many reasons. Diving is a business because it teaches and provides us with the experience and learning of the lakes, sea, and oceans. Any kind of diving can be fun and still prosperous.

Swimming abilities needed to dive include: 1) treading water using only your feet for 3 minutes; 2) swimming 300 yards without fins; 3) towing an inert swimmer 40 yards without fins; 4) staying afloat 15 minutes sans equipment; and 5) swimming 15 yards without fins.

Of course, everyone needs to be checked by a medical doctor for any deficiencies that may interfere or harm you while diving. After all of this, good equipment is needed to begin the area of diving.

The basic 5 pieces of equipment would be the mask, snorkel, fins, weight belt, and the diving suit itself. The suit is designed to let a small amount of water go between the diver and the suit. The fitting shouldn't cause discomfort, but needs to be snug enough to prevent a flow-through of water.

The face mask is maintained to protect the diver's eyes and let him or her see where they're going.

Skiing offered for winter term

Skiing for the beginner to the expert is being offered for physical education credits at Highline this winter.

The curriculum encompasses both practical on-snow instruction and lectures, covering the theoretical aspects of the sport. Courses are offered in the Graduated Length Method (start on four foot skis, advance to five foot skis, then to your personal skis when you're mastered the shorter skis), and the Standard Length Method (following up-to-date progression for all abilities).

Both GLM and SLM will have 16 hours of instruction, with six on-course classes and two lecture classes, also two hours.

Tuition for GLM will be $34 plus an added $33 if bus transportation is desired. For SLM, the tuition is $26 and an added charge for transportation, if desired.

Little League makes big error
by Bill Smith

The Little League has stated that they will continue all future World Series to emanate from the continental United States.

The reason for the change, cited by the board of directors, are the cost of travel for foreign entries and the nationalistic approach taken abroad. You have to wonder if the Little League would have made the change, if the United States teams were taking the series year after year.

In the end, all the four regional winners in the United States will face each other in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, to supposedly determine the Little League Champions. If the league is dying, it's not good sportsmanship, they are going about it in a poor way.

College Life gets people together

by Cheryl Day

College Life is a group of people that get together at 3:30 p.m. to share their faith. They meet every day from 11 to 12:30 and on Tuesday and Thursday at 11:30. For those unable to attend the later meetings, College Life invites anyone to come to their meetings and enjoy the stimulating fellowship and atmosphere there. The group meets in the upper level of the Multnomah, room 113.

During the meeting, a member of the Public Affairs Department will be encouraged. The meeting begins with singing new and old hymns. The group will discuss one or more topics of interest in the problem areas of government, politics, economics, and the environment. The members then sing, dance, and have a great deal of fellowship. The group plans to go Christmas caroling sometime in December.

College Life, has different things planned to do. Some days they prepare a lesson plan based on the Bible, such as studying the Lord's Prayer and what it means to them. During one session, the members break into small groups so they can get to know each other better and to express their thoughts. The days when there are no lessons planned, the members can bring their lunches and eat outside during the meeting.

When I asked Cindy Larson why she came to College Life, she said, "The College Life meetings are my uplift for the day. The people really care about you and make you feel important, in the same way they show the tremendous love of God. It's terrific."

Other days the group listens to tapes by Hal Lindsey or other people. One tape was on the 500th anniversary of the Christian Life.

Outside of school, the group organizes picnics in South Haven Park and has a music workshop, and in May they all get together to have fellowship with one another, sing songs, and play games such as Charades. The group plans to go Christmas caroling sometime in December.

The group has put together a directory of the members' names and have nearly 50 names on the listing. College Life is in no way affiliated with Campus Life, but similar to College Life found in other schools, it was formed by students and is a one-of-a-kind group.

Many different denominations are represented here but they all "share the love of the Lord," and have a sincere desire to witness and share their love with others.

Politic class offered during winter quarter

A five-credit course in the politics of state and local government will be offered this winter quarter beginning at 11 a.m. daily. Winter Quarter, featuring field trips to the legislature in Olympia, as well as to the blue and white court house and city hall in Seattle. These visits will include interviews with legislators serving the college community and the state legislature. The group has invited the Governor and the Secretary of State to attend.

At the local level they will include county and city councilmen and city executives or high officials in their administration. In addition, other local government officials (e.g., a District Court judge, city manager, port commissioner) and experts (e.g., spokesmen for interest groups, a lawyer engaged in environmental or criminal practice, a member of the Public Affairs Commission, a Municipal League official) will be invited to address the class in their areas of special interest.

Emphasis in the classroom will be on stimulating student interest in the problem areas and operations of government at the great range through lectures, films, panel discussions, debates, and group discussions in which students will be given opportunities to select topics of interest to them. Individual reading and research in areas of particular student interest will be encouraged.

Materials to be used for the background text will be available in the library, and a challenging new programmed workbook entitled "Analyzing State and Metropolitan, and Local Government" will be used in some phase of that activity.

Any student taking this course will have the opportunity to become more aware of the great variety of political activity taking place at the state, metropolitan, and local government levels and to become involved in some phase of that activity.

"Lack of knowledge leads to lack of interest and apathy," says Dr. Perry. "History has shown that political apathy can destroy a democratic system more quickly than invasion from outside. We deserve what happens to our society and ourselves if we don't hold public officials at all levels accountable for their actions and keep them informed as to what we want them to do."

Although previous courses in American Government and History are helpful, they are not necessary. Students with any curiosity about the "political scene around them are urged to take this course.
"Neither rain nor sleep nor dark of night will keep us from covering a story". This slogan dwells in the hearts of journalists. They live every day of their working lives devoted to one sole purpose — bringing news punctually to their readers.

After spending a full day in the newsroom, the exhausted writer goes home broken up a bit before he must again leave the warmth and comfort of the nest to cover a story. The appointed time of the event always seems to fall at a convenient time for the reporter. He almost always gets the opportunity to cover the usual humdrum everyday events like dinner. Grabbing a couple of cookies or an apple he heads for what could be the beginning of a beautiful story.

Upon arriving he hopes for a warm welcome but sometimes ends up standing in the cold darkness. He begins amusing himself by watching his breath condense as steam into the cold night air. If pictures must be taken he has the challenge of keeping his camera equipment warm against his chilled body. Condensation on the camera could be more damaging to the reporter than a few sniffles he would get, but all sufferings are soon forgotten when the character of the story begins to form.

The most disheartening thing that can happen to a reporter is when no one shows up! He realizes his suffering was for nothing and the thought of what tomorrow will bring, when he tells his editor, sends a shiver of terror down his spine.

I would now like to dedicate a three-stroke slash "Z" on the — of "Mr. X," the coordinator of the Fencing Club, who brought tears to the eyes of two T-word reporters and a rage of fury to our editor. Thank you, we needed that.

Register now for winter quarter

Booker T. Watt, Highline College's registrar, has said that the class schedules are now available for the Winter Quarter.

Any person at least 18 years old who is an immigrant on a permanent visa or a U.S. citizen can enroll at HCC. There is a $10 application fee, and any foreign students which have special entrance requirements should get in touch with the Admissions Office.

Students going to HCC now are currently enrolling. New students with appointments will enroll Dec. 18- Jan. 3, and registration for evening classes began Dec. 2.

The office hours for registration are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and on Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Counseling, parking, and day care service are available on campus. For more registration information, call the college at 781-2790.

LITTLE MISS DYN-O-MITE ... Brenda Lee still has it all together.

Nashville comes to Seattle

Story and Photos

By Stephen F. Young

Seattle had the good fortune to play host to a fantastic concert. It was composed of Floyd Cramer, Boots Randolph, and Brenda Lee. They represent what is referred to in the record business as the "Nashville Sound."

The most distinctive style among the piano set undoubtedly belongs to Floyd Cramer. Floyd is best known in record buyers as the talent behind the instrumental hit "Last Date," but the Cramer sound, often unsung and anonymous, has graced so many Nashville-produced giants that you couldn't begin to count them.

Floyd lends an elusive, casual touch to his workmanship which might be compared to the adaptation of blues-guitar technique to the piano. Floyd's right hand, while carrying the melody, seems to slide into chords, giving the effect of striking quarter tones "between" the piano keys.

Boots Randolph originally started out playing the ukulele, then the trombone, before he finally settled on the saxophone. His distinctive sax sound, both expressive, flowing, and husky, is well-known.

He was first summoned to Nashville by Chet Atkins for the purpose of using him as a side man for some of RCA's more illustrious stars whose recordings were supervised by Chet. In no time at all, Boots had not only carved himself a niche in the Nashville sound (working with all labels), but he changed the complexion of the Nashville recording scene entirely.

Brenda Lee was a giant hit in the pop field as far back as 1958, when she was only 12 years old. She earned the title of "Little Miss Dynamite" because of the way she lit up her songs. She is only five feet tall but her voice is that of a mature woman. Her popularity waned in the '60s, but she is enjoying a comeback via the country field.

These three individuals are a key to Nashville moving ahead of Los Angeles into the number one spot behind New York as America's busiest recording studio.
Business Division now is the largest

New technology evident in business areas

The new technology of education will be evident in the Business Division areas of the new occupational buildings with such innovations as the Instant Computer Reservation Terminals and two sections of a Boeing 737.

The Transportation Program will make use of the model and the terminals, a temporary laboratory for the Instant computer reservation terminals is in operation now in Puget Sound and other passenger reservations. Transportation 120 is the only class currently taught using the terminals. After the program moves into the new building with eight more terminals, the Division will work on other courses branching into scheduling of air cargo, hotel reservation and others.

The Accounting Lab will have fifteen to eighteen chairs with equipment to view siempre and slides and listen to filmstrips and slides and listen to film-strips and slides and listen to film-strips and slides and listen to film-strips and slides and listen to film-strips and slides and listen to film-strips. The Accounting Lab will be for accounting, statistics and other classes to view modules of information.

The Office Occupations program will have the students on one floor of the new terminal building. It will be in group typing labs, a business machines lab and an advanced office skills lab.

About one sixth of the students at Highline Community College are enrolled in a business course for Fall Quarter; the business division now is the largest among the eleven divisions at Highline, considering the number of full time equivalent students in business courses.

There are 12% full time instructors teaching in the division. "Usually, there are about thirty part-time instructor teaching classes for us both day and night," according to Bob Hester, chairman of the division.

The division is composed of business, hotel, office and transportation courses. Among these are the basic requirements for seven 2-year applied science degree programs and seven certificate programs.

New programs planned

A new Customs Program is in the planning stage of the Air Transport Program. It will be designed to prepare students for either work in the customs house brokers or with US Customs Services.

The growth in this area is "just about unlimited," said Bob Metcalfe, program planner. There is still a short of work to do. But it is starting to show shape and will be needed.

Seattle is a progressive part.

Transportation courses offer career opportunities

Career opportunities in the field of Transportation and related fields are increasing. Graduates from HCC have obtained jobs in most major airlines as well as in the Orient. One student in the Transport Program has obtained his student in the management field of a substantial brokerage.

About 25% of the students in Transportation program are enrolled in a business course for Fall Quarter; the business division now is the largest among the eleven divisions at Highline, considering the number of full time equivalent students in business courses.

The development of the program is to be part of the curriculum this winter, but also included will be the design of a package tour of Washington, Western Europe.

The final test of the class will take place after the students have completed a tour. The tour will be a tour of the Far East. The tour will be a tour of the Far East. After a favorable response, the Division is considering following up this winter quarter with five new career classes for both day and evening sessions.

Winter quarter will be offering a course in hotel and transportation marketing as part of the winter Business schedule on Tuesday evenings from 7-10 p.m.

The program will include the design of a package tour of Western Europe. The final test of the class will take place after the student has completed a tour. The tour will be a tour of the Far East. Robert Fripp breaks up King Crimson after "Red"

Don Zwickler

This is a combination record release and hard news event. After five years of recording and the release of "Red," their seventh album, King Crimson leader Robert Fripp has announced that he is disbanding the group. King Crimson's sound is hard to describe. It is so ugly, aggressive and unweildy that it is often impossible to describe it. However, you can describe it as to call it ugly. The rest of the album is... well, it's a combination record release and hard news event. Bill Chase passes on

One of the all-time leading jazz drummers died last October and his death went by unnoticed. If you don't know who I'm talking about, this individual's name was Bill Chase.

Bill Chase's hit release was "Get It On," released in 1972. He formed his own group called CHARIS and tried to conquer the jazz rock arena. It became an instant hit with his piercing trumpet solo and half above the other instruments. For an individual to make a contribution to the jazz market, it was something only Bill Chase could accomplish. If my memory is correct, Bill Chase got his start with the Woody Herman band.

It's sad that a man of his talent and ability can die and fade into oblivion.

The Theater Practicum Laboratory's fall production of Philip Barry's "Paris Bound" opened last night in the Highline College theater, and it's worth going to see. Under the direction of Christi Steltz, who is new to B.C.C. this year, the cast and crew of "Paris Bound" worked hard to bring Mr. Hunter's earlier feelings that the American theater is still alive and going strong.

"Paris Bound" is a modest, gentle play concerning a young newlywed couple who live the problem of infidelity and how they deal with it. There are some rather interesting things in "P.B." they are all terribly wealthy and well educated and have everyone. It is always fascinating to watch these people operate and to fantasize that these people actually do exist.

Most of the cast is outstanding, with Andrew Smith leading the list. His sense of timing and exceptionally humorous portrayal as Peter brings a bit of light and levity to "Paris Bound.

Activities for Winter

Okay, you say you're sweat- ing bullets and haven't got time to plan things for next quarter. Well, the Student Activities office in the Student Lounge do not have to worry about that, as they are down and fixed up a whole series of events to entertain and educate you during Winter Quarter. They haven't got the whole agenda set, but here's some of the things they've come up with for January.

For you Social Studies freaks there's the Documentary Film Series, also in the Lecture Hall. Beginning on Monday, the 13th, with "The Greeks: In Search of Meaning" and "The Romans: Life, Laughter, and Law," shown at noon and 8 p.m. Fillies will be shown every Monday through February 3rd.

During the week of January 12th, a video taped concert featuring Jim Croce, music artist set in life and superstar in like the action on the mat you put. Nothing definite yet.

The Highline grapplers will be touring Jim Croce, music artist set in life and superstar in like the action on the mat you put. Nothing definite yet.

- If you want to play Darrin McGavin you can pick up a ticket for the Underground Tour of Seattle and go monster hunting. The bus is scheduled for the 3rd, and tickets will be available beginning the 14th in the Student Activities Office. They're free; all you need is your A.S.B. card. There is a limit of one ticket per card.
- Winning up the first month of 1975 is the Mini Health Fair, starting the 36th, and Stanton Waterman's illustrated lecture "Man Looks to the Sea" on the 30th, at 12 noon and 7:30 p.m. in the lecture hall. That should keep you busy until February. Further information on any of the events in available in the Student Activities Office, located on the second floor of the Student Lounge in the northwest corner.

Maria Malvaraz will appear tonight, Dec. 6, at Paramount, Northwest at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are on sale at Pickett Lane Ticket Office for $2.50.

Santa Claus and his elf visit HCC

Santa Claus and his little elf will be coming to the Highline campus on December 4th. Well, maybe not the real, life-sized Santa, but a mar- netae Santa and five of his friends. Maria Creswell will bring her hands-made puppets to HCC to perform "The Night It Raised Toys," for the Child De- velopment Center at their after- noon pre-Christmas party. The paper-mache puppets include a little girl, a green, her wished husband, a maid, Santa and one of his little elves.

Ms. Creswell credits the help of her two daughters, Ann and Marianne Winter, Lori Hoxie, Cathi Center and Katie Steddy in making the marionettes while she narrates the story.

The afternoon party is at 3:00 and the morning one will be at 11:00. Apple cider, cookies and orange with candy canes in them will be served at both parties. The children will décor- ate the room before the parties and during them, the children will play games and sing Christmas songs as well as eat.

At the morning party, Cathie Pita will play the accordian and Sue Hall will play the harp.

The parties are organized and put on by the parents, said Wayne Steihardt, who is the coordinator of the child development center.

Highliners visit Children's Hospital

More than twenty persons from the Highline campus were at Seattle's Children's Hos- pital on December 4th to meet Cherry Newcomb, the children's nurse, to volunteer their time in a new rehabilitation therapy program. Selected at the pilot group in the new federally funded pro- gram, members of Highline Col- lege's drama department and family projects in small, inter- active groups with patients, in which they and the children performed puppet shows.

Prior to their visit to the hospital, both students and fac-ulty members received their time to build and paint seventy- two puppets.

"This is the new therapy program was to bring the kids close to the theatrical actors life," stated Christel Selva, High- line drama instructor. "I believe we made significant ad- vance with that.""You can't beat the fact they were happy and well-received.

Larry Graham, bass-vocalist, founder, and leader of Graham Central Station was bassin with Sly and the Family Stone long enough to have learned energy as well as anybody in the biz- nes.

The artist of this week is the talented Sue Uson. She was honored with this title by her outgoing Appliance Illustrations. The Commercial Art drawings of an IBM Computer, Shoe, Chair, and other drawings that helped win her this title are on display in the LLC.

Sue enjoys designing and magazine illustrating, and when asked how many years she's worked in Art, she replied, "I've always liked to draw and paint as far back as I can remember. As a career, Sue would like to do Commercial Art work, and if not that, she'd like to teach Commercial Art.

When being interviewed, she commented, "If you really work at it, it will work for you, and you can make a good career out of it for yourself."
Holiday celebrations all over the world

In Italy and Mexico, much has been said and written of feasting and merriment. In Italy, the Christmas Season is based on the intercession of Sant'Antonio Abate in the end of October and the beginning of November. It is a season of feasting and merriment, marked by festivities and ceremonies.

The HCC Women's Volleyball team have finished their regular season on a promising note. After coming off a dismal 5-11 season, they are in an undated on page 2a. See page 5a for details.

In terms of wins and losses, Highline Community College's first varsity soccer team faced its initial season disappointingly, as far as school backing and organization were concerned, things were frustrating. But it can never be said that HCC was not out for an education for coach Gary Rector and his hand of third basemen. Rector found the rigors of being a 33-year-old coach often-times tough — and the fact that he assumed his duties after the season was already underway didn't help any. Either Highline, facing stepped-up varsity teams from other community colleges, had no practice games, or the sub-standard conditions of a small, unorganized league, "but we worked hard as a team toward the end of the season," Rector recalled, and wound up in third place in their league.

That late-season improvement — plus the hope of making a varsity sport at Highline — leaves some promise for the future.

The big step of acquiring varsity status, "We get it through to the school that soccer is a sport and should be recognized. It also gives the high school it has varsity status and also in other community college," said Rector.

The season was a success by all measures from the standpoint of organized fields and referees, and there were no cancellations.

"We had the players, we had the field, we had the coaches, and the players were a group of every level, things were well-organized league," Rector continued.

"We'll continue pushing for it to be a varsity sport — we'd like to have our own varsity league where we can't be coming up from high school and new players can't get lost."

HCC Sports Trivia Quiz

by Mike Sanderson

It seems the season really had its ups and downs. Highline had many chances to score, but for some reason the ball kept going right to the goalie's waiting arms.

If work and school hadn't gotten in the way, then more players would have been able to come to more practices. Rector feels the team had a very strong one. The players got a lot of effort and tried their hardest, but they needed just a little more experience.

Highline was the key factor in Highline's losses, as the team had put many goals in the last 5-15 minutes of play. Forty-five minute games are played at the college level, and to be able to play practically non-stop for 90 minutes requires great physical endurance.

All in all, Rector says it was a fun season; it taught the players how to accept things that weren't going their way. He named Dave Summers and Nels Christianson as the two most improved players on the team.

It took nearly all Fall Quarter to get students started but it did happen, at least that's a start.

The student senate is beginning to form task forces and committees. As a concerned student I've been a member of several committees and still have been disappointed by the lack of initiative our student body officers have showed.

The senate meetings are running a little smoother than before. Next year we are hoping to gain self-confidence and ruling the meetings better. Most are taking a personal interest.

Remembering this last point is the key. We are playing student this quarter.

As the old Christmas song goes, "Tis the season to be jolly," but who's feeling jolly?

With the Christmas holidays approaching, the local businesses are trying to get into action with their Christmas sale campaigns. Post talks have been given to the sales personnel to get out there and sell, sell, sell, because of course Christmas for many businesses means the largest sales volume for the entire year.

But the traditional feeling of Christmas has been deflated by Cliches at Christmas

by Cyndi Tan

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." That is one of the popular phrases that sprout up around this season. Think how it sounds hollow around this season. Think how it sounds far from the season actually begins, and tack on about three months.

We have been brain washed by these campaigns. We have made the commercial aspect of Christmas more important than the event itself. After all, Christmas is supposed to be the celebration of Christ's birth. Remember?

It used to be that on this day during the season, people got together to share friendships and love, to have fun and enjoy each other. It was a religious holiday with a big emphasis on the church. Songs like Silent Night and It Came Upon a Midnight Clear were sung. Songs that depicted Christ's birth. Now we hear such rebellious tunes as Cheech and Chong's "Let Him down before the white Christmas tree, the green and red boughs are hung and the pillars are lit with miniature twinkling stars. What happened to old Tom Turley between this conversation?

This premature adventuring, decorating and sale spirit are crammed down our throats at this month and a half before the season actually begins, which used to be the week after Thanksgiving.

With this advanced attack on Christmas, it is no wonder that many people associate the pre-Christmas shopping days with headaches, tired feet, screaming kids, ripped packages, playing tag--war over a lack of nickels, 20 minute wait at the counter, full parking lots and the bills when it's all over with.

B-ballers defeat Edmonds

After three games, Highline's 1974-75 basketball team finds itself with a mediocre 1-2 record.

With all games played on the road, the Thunderbirds lost their only meeting with Edmonds, 77-72, and were defeated by Skagit Valley, 85-80.

At Bellevue, freshman Dan Carr threw in 22 points while Tim Hardie added 17 tallies. Bellevue outscored the Thunderbirds 17-9 in the first quarter and went on to win against Edmonds, 77-72, and were defeated by Skagit Valley, 85-80.

The 'Birds will next travel east across the mountains to play in the Christmas Tournament at Parkland.

Backfield is QB's best friend

by David Pearson

Why do we 'chicken quarterbacks' give the football away to the players in back of us? That's a good question with an even better answer. The quarterbacks don't pass all of the time, an offensive line is needed to provide a strong run blocking. Initially, that's most of the football game. It provides the yards, at times, then the pass.

On the average, there is usually two or three men in the backfield, depending on the play. The common names of the positions are the halfbacks and the fullback. Utilizing on the backfield skills, each man is required to have speed, agility, durability, coordination, aggressiveness and lust of courage. Any man with these aspects can play effective ball. However, a running back doesn't always pass. Many times, he blocks to help the quarterback take time to pass and when he has to, 13 1/2 yard running back even passes.

Backfield players come in all sizes. In the W.F.L, the Port Arthur Storm has a strong running back that's 5'3" and weighs 180-185 pounds. Rufus Ferguson can really scramble. Hard to catch, that's the name of the running game. On the other hand, one of the bigger men in the history of football was a 6'3" 280-pound fullback called Enrico Nageri. Naming the range of these two, each backfield has its own skill. That's what makes a backfield.

NOW, YOU ARE THERE. Take a look on your own twenty-five yard line. The two-minute warning has been given to both teams. Behind four points, you have to go for the touchdown. If you don't, you run up the middle of the scrimmage line. Getting into the shuffle, the next play is a flip out to the left halfback. Passing long, the right end gets to their thirty-five yard line. Now, you've got to block for the fullback as he goes through the scrimmage line. Getting the first down at their ten, you get the ball for your first down. If you're tackled, you've got to dive for the end zone. Did you make it?

Grapplers start season; Maky and Neese win

by Greg Bennett

Tom Maky and Carl Neese opened up the 1974-75 high school wrestling season with first places when the Thunderbirds competed in the Eastern Washington Invitationals last Saturday at Cheney.

Maky (134) and Neese (142) were just two of the fine performances for Highline in the individual events.

Larry Ericklund (125) and Pat Dowling (130) captured second places, while Leonard Kinner (136), George Paulus (157), and Carl Spreet (145) wrestled their way to third.

Coach Wooding, who has a "hard good squad," likes his chances on placing first in the conference this year.

Murray fifth in finals; Highline takes second

by Greg Bennett

Spokane and Highline totally outclassed the remainder of the field as both teams topped off each other in the N.W.A.C.C. Championship Meet at Seward Park, November 8.

Seward Park, by taking the first four spots, and the sixth through eighth, defeated the other Thunderbirds to capture the first place trophy.

Rick Whitaker won the meet in a time of 10:46.

Tim Murray helped Highline earn the second place trophy when he placed fifth in a time of 20:24. His best time at Seward Park.

Murray also beat Brian Griswold of Spokane, a fact he hasn't been able to do even when they were teammates at Hazen High School. Griswold placed seventh in a time of 20:27.

Kurt Goetzinger, Steve Stagbeug and Dave Schnor were finished third, tenth, and eleventh respectively to ensure the Thunderbirds second place.

Final score were: Spokane, 14; Highline, 17; Bellevue, 103; Riverdale, 156; Green River, 156; Mt. Hood, 171; Yakima, 152; Shoreline, 315; Seattle Central and Clark, no score.

The Thunderbirds, who Coach McConnaghy considers the best cross country team in seven years, captured first five places, one third and the big second place in the Championship.

Tim Murray was the biggest factor in Highline's success as he crossed the rape in first place four times, attaining places.

Registration up for the Vets

GI Bill enrollments of 15 million in October were nine per cent above last October's and 21 per cent above October 1972, the Veterans Administration reported today.

November enrollment will top October's if the usual pattern of peak enrollments during November and April holds true this year, VA officials speculated.

October totals included 911,000 veteran and servicemen who studied at the college level, 35 per cent more than in October the previous year. Another 420,000 trainees were enrolled in below college level schools or on job training, causing only a slight increase from October last year.

Training has increased each year since June 1966 when the current GI Bill went into effect. It now costs $1,320 million or 53.2 per cent of the eligibles - down from the 64 per cent of the eligibles - under the Kennedy GI Bill and 51 million or 64.4 per cent of the eligibles - under the original GI Bill.

Single veterans going to school full time under the GI Bill receive $328 monthly, while veteran with dependents draw additional benefits. Funding legislation would increase these allowances.

HCC racks up five big wins

by Colette Deigle

In their second test with Bremerton Community College, Highline’s Women’s Volleyball team defeated the Thunderbirds 15-11, 15-13, and 15-8. The Thunderbirds team lost three matches, and the final match of the three was won bydefault for the Highline team, as the Thunderbirds’ women’s team couldn’t attend the match. The Highline team dominated the game, as the Thunderbirds couldn’t keep up with the Highline team. The Highline team won the first game 15-11, but lost the second 15-13, and won the third 15-8 taking the match.

The Highline vs. Bellevue match of November 21st, was rescheduled for December 3rd. As a concluding finale of their 1994 season, Highline’s Women’s Volleyball team will travel to Everett for the Washington State Volleyball Tournament. In a series of matches that will occupy most of Saturday and Sunday, the Thunderbirds will compete with Bellevue and other Community Colleges from around the state for top honors. Coach Broomell, optimistic about the tournament and her team this year, exclaims, “We have a lot of talent, and have had tremendous attendance.”
McQueen, Hot-Lips headline film series
by Dave Bradley

When Highline Community College’s Winter Quarter gets rolling in January, so will a new selection of motion pictures in the H.C.C.3 film series. A variety of films are slated to be presented, they are:

LITTLE BIG MAN

(Little Big Man (Feb. 12))

Dustin Hoffman’s brilliant portrayal of Jack Crabb, sole survivor of Custer’s last stand as Little Big Horn, who becomes an Indian brave and lone hunter, amongst other occupations. A masterpiece of a movie, not to be taken lightly. Faye Dunaway, Chief Dan George and Martin Balsam co-star.

BULLITT

(Bullitt (Mar. 5))

Just another rip story, or is it? Whatever you may have heard about the auto chase is probably true, it’s the foreunner of the French Connection. Stars Steve McQueen, Jacqueline Bisset and Robert Duvall (Vega). If you’ve seen it, see it again, if you haven’t now’s your chance!

(1776 (Mar. 5))

As the United States’ 260th anniversary approaches, this joyous musical brings the history of America alive before your eyes. See Ben Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and the making of the Declaration of Independence like you’ve never seen them before. Ken Howard, William Daniels and Howard Da Silva star in this enjoyable movie musical.

MASH

(M*A*S*H (Jan. 23))

The violent, realistic tale of military work in Los Angeles, which paints a picture of how it really is, with no punches pulled. Fine performances by George C. Scott and Stacy Keach.

EXECUTIVE ACTION

“Fatal notch in the art of politics.”

New York Times

Executive Action (Jan. 8): A frenzied search to find President Kennedy might have been the victim of an assassination conspiracy, leading the conspiracy are Kurt Lancaster (the late) Robert Ryan, and Will (Grandpa Walton) Geer.

THE NEW CENTURION

NEWSDAY
Covering the sports world in four, short minutes

Bruce King, KOMO Sports Director

In a four minute radio spot back in the early 1960s, Bruce King laid out his new job to his wife. Although he had the same interest in sports and media, she was less than elated. A radio spot is a short news item or bit of a story that is used to fill in a broadcast, the length of which is governed by the time available and the need to cover the story. Each spot has its own time slot, much like pieces in a jigsaw puzzle. "If something's happening in the day, it's my obligation to go down to the newsroom and make out a hat of the story," King said. "I think around all the time wanting to do something, you've got to stay away from." King explained that much of what has happened during the last few minutes could be more than a headline, "but you can't cover every story that's out there." He's not a sensationalist; he's not a news event but a part of the sports community. "You get people coming around all the time wanting to do something, and you can't do it," he said. "Sometimes, no matter how you spin it, it's not a good story."

"I don't want to comment on this. You know, you really have to be careful about what you do. You don't want to make a comment on something that you really shouldn't comment on."

"I don't think we really have any obligation to go out and say, 'Hey, we're not going to do anything.'"

"I guess the best way to describe what you do is kind of, be yourself and make it interesting."

"If you don't like what you hear, you're in the wrong business because no one else will like it either."

"If something's happening during the day, it's my obligation to go down to the newsroom and make out a hat of the story."
College Life gets people together
by Cheryl Day

College Life is a group of people that get together at HCC to share their faith. Their meeting every day from 13 to 2:30 and on Thursdays from 11 to 11:30 is held for those interested to attend the later meeting.

College Life invites anyone to come to their meetings and enjoy the stimulating fellowship and atmosphere there. The group meets in Tanum 205 at 12 and frequently 100 at 11.

Their basic goal is to be able to share love with each other and to be able to accept someone else's love toward them and to be able to relate their faith to one another.

"Through College Life I've met some beautiful people that I might not have known otherwise," said Lam Savage.
The group opens its meetings with a prayer and sometimes brings out a guitar and other instruments, and everyone joins in the singing of some songs. They have some songs in the Bible and right now the group is working on a workbook so everyone will be able to sing along.

The group plans to go Christ-centered sometime in December. Don and the group have put together a directory of the members' names and have nearly 90 names on the list. College Life is in no way affiliated with Campus Life, a group similar to College Life found in other schools; it was formed by students and is a one-of-a-kind group.

Officers of the group are Don Gunstone, president; Leonard Savage, vice president; and Debbie Loomis, secretary.

Comparing ideas... Leonard Savage, Sue Phillips and Mike Delarena share ideas on a Biblical passage.

Many different denominations are represented here but they all "share the love of the Lord" and have a sincere desire to witness and share their love with others.

Politics class offered during winter quarter

A five credit course in the political science department of the University of Washington will be offered at 11 a.m. in Tanum 100. During field trips to the legislatures in Olympia, as well as to the King County court house and City Hall in Seattle, these tours will include interviews with legislators serving the college community and student's behalf, the Governor and/or Attorney General (if their schedules permit), a Supreme Court justice and the Secretary of State.

At the local level they will include county and city councilmen and chief executives or high officials in their administration. In addition, other local government officials (e.g. a District Court judge, city manager, port commissioner, etc.) or spokesmen for interest groups (e.g. spokespersons for interest groups, a lawyer engaged in environmental or criminal practice, a member of the Fair Disclosure Commission, a Municipal League official) will be invited to address the class in their areas of special interest.

Emphasis in the classroom will be on stimulating student interest in the problem areas and operations of government at the grass roots through lecture, films, panel discussions, debates, and group discussions in which students will be given opportunities to select topics of interest to them. Individual reading and research in areas of particular student interest will be encouraged.

Materials to be used for background are textbook, paper, handout on the so-called "new federalism" and a challenging new program workbook entitled "Analyzing State and Local Politics." Students may choose to read outside text in the text's appendix or not.

Research projects may be, for example, focus on the progress and issues of a particular court case, a city or county council meeting, or a matter before the Seattle Port Commission.

Any student taking this course will have the opportunity to be closer to the great variety of political activity taking place at the state capitol, and local government and to become involved in some phase of that activity.

"Lack of knowledge leads to lack of interest and apathy," says Dr. Perry. "History has shown that political apathy can destroy a democratic system more quickly than invasion from outside. We deserve what happens to our society and ourselves if we don't hold public officials at all levels accountable for their actions and keep them informed as to what we want them to do."

Although previous courses in American Government and History are helpful, they are not necessary.

Students with any curiosity about the 'political scene' around them are urged to take this course.

Thunder Word
"Neither rain nor deep nor dark of night will keep us from covering a story." This slogan dwells in the hearts of journalists. They live every day of their working lives devoted to one sole purpose - bringing news punctually to their readers.

After spending a full day in the newsroom, the exhausted writer goes home to freshen up a bit before he must again leave the warmth and comfort of the nest to cover a story. The appointed time of the event always seems to fall at a convenient time for the reporter. He almost always gets the opportunity to forget the usual humdrum everyday events like dinner. Grabbing a couple of cookies or an apple he heads for what could be the beginning of a beautiful story. Upon arriving he hopes for a warm welcome but sometimes ends up standing in the cold darkness. He begins amusing himself by watching his breath condense as steam into the cold night air. If pictures must be taken he has the challenge of keeping his camera equipment warm against his chilled body. Condensation in the camera could be more damaging to the reporter than a few sniffles he would get. But all sufferings are soon forgotten when the characters of the story finally arrive.

The most disheartening thing that can happen to a reporter is when no one shows up! He realizes his suffering was for nothing and the thought of what tomorrow will bring, when he tells his editor, sends a shiver of terror down his spine. I would now like to dedicate a three stroke slash "Z" on the - of "Mr. X," the coordinator of the Fencing Club, who brought tears to the eyes of two T-word reporters and a rage of fury to our editor. Thank you, we needed that.

Register now for winter quarter

Booher T. Watt, Highline College's registrar, has said that the class schedules are now available for the Winter Quarter.

Any person at least 18 years old who is an immigrant on a permanent visa or a U.S. citizen can enroll at HCC. There is a $10 application fee, and any foreign students which have special entrance requirements should get in touch with the Admissions Office.

Students going to HCC now are currently enrolling, new students with appointments will enroll Dec 16 - Jan 3, and registration for evening classes began Dec 6. The office hours for registration are from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and on Fridays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Counseling, parking, and day care service are available on campus. For more registration information, call the college at 878-3710.
Nashville comes to Seattle

Story and Photos

By Stephen F. Young

Seattle had the good fortune to play host to a fantastic concert. It was composed of Floyd Cramer, Boots Randolph, and Brenda Lee. They represent what is referred to in the record business as the "Nashville Sound."

The most distinctive style among the piano set undoubtedly belongs to Floyd Cramer. Floyd is best known to record buyers as the talent behind the instrumental hit "Last Date," but the Cramer sound, often unsung and anonymous, has graced so many Nashville-produced giants that you couldn't begin to count them.

Floyd lends an elusive, casual touch to his workmanship which might be compared to the adaptation of blues-guitar technique to the piano. Floyd's right hand, while carrying the melody, seems to slide into chords, giving the effect of striking quarter tones "between" the piano keys.

Boots Randolph originally started out playing the ukulele, then the trombone, before he finally settled on the saxophone. His distinctive sax sound, be it soprano, alto, tenor or baritone, is well-known.

He was first summoned to Nashville by Chet Atkins for the purpose of using him as a sideman for some of RCA's more illustrious stars whose recordings were supervised by Chet. In no time at all, Boots had not only carved himself a niche in the Nashville sound (working with all labels), but he changed the complexion of the Nashville recording scene entirely.

Brenda Lee was a giant hit in the pop field as far back as 1958, when she was only 12 years old. She earned the title of "Little Miss Dyn-O-Mite" because of the way she belted out her songs. She is only five feet tall but her voice is that of a mature woman. Her popularity waned in the '50s, but she is enjoying a comeback via the country field.

These three individuals are a key to Nashville moving ahead of Los Angeles into the Number Two spot behind New York as America's busiest recording studio.
Business Division now is the largest

About one sixth of the students at Highline Community College are enrolled in a business course for Fall Quarter; the business division now is the largest among the eleven divisions at Highline considering the number of full time equivalent students in business courses.

There are 13% full time instructors teaching in the division.

"Usually, there are about thirty part-time instructors teaching classes for us each day and night," according to Bob Hester, chairman of the division.

The division is composed of business, hotel, office and transportation courses. Among these are the basic requirements for seven Business applied science degree programs and seven certificate programs.

New programs planned

A new Customs Program is in the planning stage of the Air Transport Program. It will be designed to prepare students for either work in the customs house brokerages or with US Customs Service.

The growth in this area is just about unlimited," said Bob Metzalf, program planner. "There is still a lot of work to do. But it is starting to take shape and will be needed." Seattle is a progressive port.

Transportation courses offer career opportunities

Career opportunities in the field of Transportation abound at HCC.

Positions that a student can pursue include: Ticket agent, Renovations, Flight Attendant, Ramp Agent, Travel Agent, Office Manager, Broker, Tariff Analyst, Traffic Manager and others.

Graduates from HCC have obtained jobs in major airlines as well as Amtrak. One graduate is a stewardess for Air Force One. Another student is an agent for Read- own Air Freight based out of London.

Hotel program includes tour

The Hotel program will be offering a course in hotel sales and marketing as a part of the winter Business schedule on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 p.m.

The marketing analysis will be part of the curriculum this winter but also included will be the design of a package tour of the West Coast, Washington. Students will be guided in the design of a package tour by a representative of the San Juan Islands-Hotels and Resorts Association.

HOTEL TOUR... Students in Hotel 177 tour Hotels and restaurants in the Puget Sound area. The students shown here are learning about food service management.

Real estate

After a favorable response during the fall quarter the Business Division is following up with a winter quarter class in real estate.

Winter quarter will be offering Real Estate Advertising and Sales at 8 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday mornings or Principles of Real Estate at 1 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Both courses will be directed toward most likely associate degrees in property or required numbered in the Real Estate Division.

New technology evident in business areas

The new technology of education will be evident in the Business Division areas of the new occupational buildings with such innovations as twelve inceptor Computer Reservation Terminals and two sections of a Boeing 747.

The Transportation Program will make use of the model and the terminals. A temporary laboratory for four of the inceptor computer reservation terminals is in operation now in Pavilion 189 for airline passenger reservations. Transportation 328 is the only class currently taught using the terminals. After the program moves into the new building with eight more terminals, the Division will work on other courses branching into scheduling of air cargo, hotel room reservations and others.

The Accounting Lab will have fifteen to eighteen chairs equipped with viewing systems, film strips or slides and in-formation recorded on tape. The facility will be for accounting, statistics and other courses in which the display of information is used.

The Office Occupations program will have most of its classes on one floor of the new buildings. Instead of three typing labs, a business machine lab and an advanced office skills lab.

Marketing plus selling equals opportunity

Highline's marketing and selling program again is providing many opportunities for young men and women who are highly motivated and who relate easily to other people.

The two-year program is designed to prepare students for career opportunities in all phases of marketing. The program covers three basic areas including: awareness of the broad dynamic field of marketing, development of personal selling skills, plus development of managerial principles.

The courses offered in the marketing and selling program are set up to offer the student a two year path toward a successful career. One, for those who wish to enter work activity immediately, it offers a complete program to prepare the student for the high demands of marketing. Two, for those who intend programming for a four-year institution, it prepares those students for the demands of upper-division course material.

Admission for this program is open to anyone who is at least 18 years old, or a high school graduate. The Marketing-Selling Program is open to all students having a sincere interest in developing the knowledge and skills necessary for a successful career in the field.

Classes in this program are being taught during the day and part of the time in the evenings. According to Mr. Earl E. Baer, program director between 40 and 50 students have enrolled in the fall quarter.

Business asks

The Business department is again seeking response from the students of HCC in relating ideas of concern regarding the Business Department (pro or con). Complaints, comments, compliments and suggestions can be expressed by picking up a yellow "suggestion/complaint" sheet in Counseling or Kitap faculty building (Faculty Div.

ARTIST OF THE WEEK
By D. Kerby

The artist of this week is the talented Sue Larson. She was honored with this title by her outgoing Appliance Illustrations. The Commercial Art drawings of an IBM Computer, Shoe, Chair, and other drawings Sue helped with her title are on display in the LCD.

Sue enjoys designing and magazine illustrating, and when asked how many years she's worked in Art, she replied, "I've always liked to draw and paint as far back as I can remember."

As a career, Sue would like to do Commercial Art work, and if not that, she'd like to teach Commercial Art.

When being interviewed she commented, "If you really work at it, it will work for you, and you can make a good career out of it for yourself."

Skindiving can be fun
by David Pearson

Swimming is great fun, but does anyone wish to swim under the water? Many people enjoy the sport as a business of diving, as a sport because of the thrill of overcoming curiosity. Many want to learn how to dive for many reasons. Diving is a business because it teaches and provides us with the experience and learnings of the lakes, seas, and oceans. Any kind of diving can be fun and still prosperous. Swimming abilities needed to dive include: (1) treading water using only your feet for 3 minutes; (2) swimming 50 yards without fins; (3) staying afloat 5 minutes sans equipment; and (4) swimming 15 yards without fins or a pushoff. Of course, everyone needs to be checked by a medical doctor for any deficiencies that may interfere or harm you while diving. After all of this, good equipment is needed to begin the area of diving.

The basic 5 pieces of equipment would be the mask, snorkel, fins, weight belt, and the diving suit itself. The suit is designed to let a small amount of water go between the diver and the suit. The fitting shouldn't cause discomfort, but needs to be snug enough to prevent a flow-through of water. The weight belt is used to equalize the positive buoyancy by pushing the person under the water. The fins are for the actual swimming underwater. They help “push” the diver forward, the snorkel is the device used to obtain the air without surfacing. This is fundamentally the tasks for beginning the actual diving. “Snorkeling” is used primarily on a small boat in a small body of water. Of course, the face mask is maintained to protect the diver’s eyes and let him or her see where they’re going. Skiing offered for winter term

Skiing for the beginner in the expert is being offered for physical education credits at Highline this winter. The curriculum encompasses both practical overview instruction and lectures, covering the theoretical aspects of the sport. Courses are offered in the Graduated Length Method, start on four foot skis, advance to six foot skis, then to your personal skis when you’ve mastered the shorter skis, and the Standard Length Method (following upgrade progressions) for all abilities. Both GLM and SLM will have 18 hours of instruction, with six one-hour classes of two hours a piece, and three lecture classes, one hour each.

Tuition for GLM will be $34 plus an added $33 if transportation is desired. For SLM the tuition is $88 and an added charge of $33 for transportation, if desired.

Little League makes big error
by Bill Smith

The Little League has stated that they will enforce all future World Series from teams from the continental United States. It looks as though the Little League has taken the measure that if you can’t beat ‘em, join ‘em. The Taiwan teams have won the series the past four years. Japan won the championship the previous two years, and in 1987 and 1988, Mexico, Mexico took the baseball title for boys from eight to twelve years old. The reason for the change, cited by the board of directors, are the cost of travel for foreign entries and the nationalistic approach taken abroad. You have to wonder if the Little League would have made the change, if the United States teams were taking the series year after year.

From now on the four regional winners in the United States will face each other in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, to determine the Little League Champion. If the League in trying to addle good international cooperation, they are going about it in a poor way.

Robert Fripp breaks up
King Crimson after "Red"

Don Zwicker

This is a combination record review and death notice. After the recent release of "Red", their seventh album, King Crimson leader Robert Fripp has announced that he is breaking up the group.

King Crimson's sound is hard to label. Maybe the only way to describe it is to call it ugly. Time signatures change throughout the songs; harsh dissonance is a way of life. Even Wetton seasons his vocals with Laura Nyro. "Fus" is a box.

Fripp is a respected guitarist; Robin Trower recent-ly went to him for lessons and advice on guitar techniques. He is not "Red" where the music falters. "Presidio", an eight minute jam, never really catches; there's no direction to the music. But the rest of the album works, and works extremely well. "Fallen Angel" and "One More Red Nightmares" are light and aggressive. But the best song is the last song, "Starless".

Fripp's announcement, before the band flirted with iron, started to make sense. But "Starless" achieves it, mixing contrasts and sounds without losing grasp of the original theme.

"Paris Bound" will continue its enjoyable run for two more weekends. If you're fond of the American Dream, come, see it! Tickets for the remaining performances are available in the bookstore for $1.00 or $3.00 for students.

Bill Chase passes on

Don Zwicker

One of the all-time leading jazz record players died last October and his death went by unnoticed. If you don't know who I'm talking about, this individual's name was Bill Chase.

His biggest hit release was "Get It On," released in 1975. He formed his own group called CHARE and tried to conquer the jazz rock arena. It became an instant hit with his plexing trumpet, an active and a half above the other instruments.

For an individual to make a conversion to the rock market was something only Bill Chase could accomplish. (If my memory is correct, Bill Chase put his start with the Woody Herman band.)

It's sad that a man of his talent and ability can die and fade into oblivion.

Holiday celebrations all over the world

If all the festival days had to be given a name, some, almost every country in the world would be able to claim ownership. We've been given the entire month of December, the so-called Christmas season. Though the term was coined and used for the first time in the 4th century A.D., the tradition of festivity associated with the holiday season is two thousand years old.

In many countries the first day of December is a festival in itself. In Mexico, the Mexican government has declared December 12 as a national holiday called "Fiesta de las Velitas." People decorate their houses with lights and put candles on their doors. In Italy, the tradition is to visit each house on December 8 and give a gift of some wine. The Italians give special gifts to their friends and family. In France, December 12 is called "Fête des Rois," and on this day, people bake a special cake called "Epiphany cake," which contains a small piece of candy. The person who gets the piece becomes the king or queen for the day.

In the United States, the tradition of giving gifts on December 6 is called "Santa's Birthday." In many countries, December 6 is celebrated as the Day of the Holy Innocents, when it is believed that Jesus Christ was saved from death by his mother. The people who celebrate this day give gifts to children.

In Russia, the traditional gift is a doll. The Russian word for doll is "doll." In Russia, December 6 is called "Doll Day." People give dolls to children as a gift. In China, December 6 is called "Doll Day." People give dolls to children as a gift. In Japan, December 6 is called "Doll Day." People give dolls to children as a gift.

Counseling Center assists students

by Carol Wilde

The Counseling Center assists students by providing a variety of personal and academic counseling to help students with a wide range of concerns. Counseling services are available to help students explore their career goals, manage stress, improve academic performance, and address personal issues. The center offers individual counseling as well as group sessions. Counseling services are available to all students and can be accessed through the Counseling Center on campus.

The counseling process involves a collaborative effort between the counselor and the student. The counselor will work with the student to identify and address personal and academic challenges. Counseling sessions may focus on helping students develop coping strategies, enhance problem-solving skills, and improve their overall well-being.

The Counseling Center also offers workshops and seminars on topics such as time management, stress reduction, and career exploration. These workshops provide additional support and resources for students.

Overall, the Counseling Center plays a vital role in supporting the academic and personal success of students at Cedarhurst College.
Hicks, veterans hassle at TCC

If all of Congressman Floyd Hicks' campaign appearances were like his nine-hour session at Tacoma Community College recently, he wouldn't have wanted to create the hay he did.
The school has a lot of veterans. They asked about GI Bill hang-ups and, Hicks, according to General Hospital, Hicks' replies failed to satisfy either question.

Asked why the GI Bill had taken as long (9 months), Hicks replied, "I work for a living."

If we hadn't decided to wait 2½ years to report to Vietnam," another vet shouted, in reference to the time lapse since the last war.

At this point, all hope for reaching harmony was lost, and the vote heard Hicks say, "If you don't like the way things are, you can always vote somebody else in at the next election."

Quite a few people were planning to do just that.

Journalism class faces challenge in John Scott

John Scott, now vice-president of Radio Liberty, will be a "flesh-out" of his recent book, all next week as keynote speaker in a journalism class being conducted in the class room.

Students will question Scott on current world problems during the last three test news stories, editorial or commentary based on Scott's commentaries.

Scott retired from Time Magazine in June of 72 after more than 20 years as staff reporter, editor, writer and lecturer.

In October of 72 he was named to his present post with Radio Liberty, the former Radio Free Europe.

For seventeen years he made in-depth studies of crisis areas throughout the world for Time. His energy in four languages makes him especially qualified for foreign assignments and enables him to interview people from all walks of life in order to balance opinions and report the complete story.

It has been written several times, the latest being "Condolent of Thy Stand" dealing with the two Germanies (GDR and FRG), assignment for Radio Liberty. "Dissent: Through Soviet Eyes," published in May.

For more than 30 years Radio Liberty has been broadcasting to the ex-GDR Soviet Union in Russian and 17 other languages. From its powerful antennas in Spain and Germany, Radio Liberty beams its news, feature and commentary programs to Munich, Turin and Dusseldorf, to an estimated audience of 40 million adults whose listening habits according to surveys vary very regionally (at least once a week, in the duration) at least once a week. It is funded by appropriations from the U.S. Congress.

Some of the occupational programs incorporated in the new buildings will include regional motel operations, transportation and travel, office and data processing, and service station management and operations.

Special equipment planned for use in these new buildings are a crime lab, hospital operating room, mock airport terminal, mock interior of a jet transport, and a mock interior of a jet transport to be built.

"Wazzat?"

Minority Clubs plan futures

Minority clubs are just trying to give each other moral support," commented minority affairs director Lee Piper in discussing projects to get different minority groups to work on.

Many of the minority clubs are concentrating on ideas for the cultural exchange which is slated to take place sometime in February.

One project taken up by the student club this year was an ad campaign to get the halls more involved. Students knew this year the craftsmen participated in the event which helped as a Christmas fund raiser for the Indian student club.

Representatives from each of the minority groups recently participated in a University of Washington workshop for minority education, which consisted of educational and vocational programs of interest to the students.

Plans for an Indian Longhouse have been discussed and are starting to take shape. "We (the minority affairs office and S.C.C.) would like to work in conjunction with R.T.O.W. (small tribes of Washington) on the project," commented Lee Piper, a model for the proposed Longhouse, can be found in the library.

Computer for library?

During a recent Community College meeting held in Oregon, a proposal was made to purchase a computer system for the library. Each college would have its own terminal tied directly into the central unit.

This system would increase the accuracy, efficiency and speed of the library system.

This computer would expand student use of books to more than those found on our own campus shelves. The computer could tell the student where the book is located (at what shelf) and if it is checked out there. In the present situation books are only transferred between schools three times per week which may be too late for the student whose paper is due homework.

This computer would greatly expand the access of new materials. Presently it costs the library $9.50-$10.50 per week to process a single item.

The computer would cut these costs to approximately $0.80 per item. The computer would also handle bibliography files, holding information, authority files, input of local cataloging information, and vocabulary data.
