Registration termed "fiasco"

Power outage adds to long lines, long wait

by KATHY SMITH

What started out as a favor to students ended up causing a problem for Registrar Booker Watt when his computer crashed a few minutes into the first day of open registration.

According to Watt, the trouble began on Monday, September 7, when the staff was working on the computer to add the names of students who had pre-registered and had not paid their tuition and fees. The computer was turned on to add the names of the students who had pre-registered and had not paid their tuition and fees.

However, the computer crashed, and the staff was forced to work on the computer again. The computer was turned on again, and the staff was able to add the names of the students who had pre-registered and had not paid their tuition and fees.

Despite the long lines and hot tempers, there were no complaints, according to Betty Duncan, registration supervisor. She said that the students were not in a rush and were willing to wait for the registration to be completed.

With the economy the way it is, Watt said, "we wanted to give the students a break, so we decided to put the registration on a shoestring budget quickly turned into a fiasco by KATHY SMITH due to the economic pinch on the students who get their tuition from the classes they registered in the second week of advanced registration.

The plan was to use Friday, September 7, to work on the computer, and by 5 p.m. the staff had only gotten just over half of the alphabet entered. To make up for lost time, the staff agreed to come in early on Tuesday and work on the computer to enter the unpaid names into the system.

By the time the electricity was turned on, over half of the day was gone, and by 5 p.m. the workers had only gotten just over half of the alphabet entered. Watt added that although no numbers were given in the registration, there were more people in line than there were at the first of each month.

The problem was that people were trying to avoid the walk to the office, where parking was available. The students tried to park their cars at the Midway Parking Lot, but according to Chapman, the accidents were not a result of the crowded lots. Chapman said that the Traffic and Parking problems had settled way down.

This week, Campus Security issued parking stickers. According to Chapman, however, this week they will begin issuing tickets to people who park in the wrong area.

Parking spaces

Parking for the illusive parking space.

With enrollment down, parking should be better than last fall,' said Chapman. "It's a lot of cars if they'd use the Midway Parking Lot because there are more than 200 elements of students who would park there. It's a lot of cars if they'd use the Midway Parking Lot because there are more than 200 elements of students who would park there. It's a lot of cars if they'd use the Midway Parking Lot because there are more than 200 elements of students who would park there.

Despite long lines and hot tempers, there were no complaints, according to Betty Duncan, registration supervisor. She said that the students were not in a rush and were willing to wait for the registration to be completed.

WANTED:

Parking spaces

The first week of Fall Quarter brought with it the usual portion of crowded lots, traffic jams and "bookstore blues." It also brought with it the search for the illusive parking space.

Although there were 50,000 spaces available on the first day of open registration, and though enrollment is down from this time last year, it's to be expected.

Parking spaces will be at its worst these first couple of weeks according to Jack Chapman, campus security chief. Chapman said that people are still registering.

The students would love to have their parking stickers, but according to Chapman, the accidents were not a result of the crowded lots. Chapman said that the Traffic and Parking problems had settled way down.

This week, Campus Security issued parking stickers. According to Chapman, however, this week they will begin issuing tickets to people who park in the wrong area.
Treasury increases due to lagged payroll

Washington State government will earn $4 million from Governor Spelman's 15-day lagged payroll plan which was initiated yesterday.

All state employees received only 80 percent of their net earnings on the current, regular scheduled payday. The remaining 20 percent will be received on October 10th.

After this adjusting month, state employees such as teachers, welfare workers and State Patrol officers, will feel the tightening of the budget.

Utilities, loan and mortgage companies, department stores, and people leasing real estate will feel its effect when the end of the month comes and the monies which are usually used to pay these monthly bills are not received until at least 10 days later.
Cheerleaders kick away from stereotype

by KAREN BELONGIA

Breaking away from the usual "cute and sexy" cheerleader stereotype and concentrating on supporting Highline's 8th- to 11th-graders in actual cheerleading to actual cheerleader situations.

For example: The cheerleaders asked, "Are you a cheerleader? If so, then let's cheer!" In the interview, cheerleaders were invited to join and help the cheerleaders perform and other related activities. Sign up sheets for the pepstaff are posted around the campus.

The performance consisted of a short cheer in which Galbraith and Stuessy barked for coordination, timing, spirit and pace.

During the interview, candidates had to answer prepared questions pertaining to actual cheerleader situations.

For example: The candidates were asked, "What do you think are the most important qualities of a cheerleader?" They were also asked, "What do you think your biggest weakness is?"

"So far things are going well," Galbraith said. "We hope to stress to people that we're not going to the games to look cute and sexy. We plan to help in other ways."

"For example, I plan to help with the promotion of a cross-country or swim meet by setting up flags or anything else that needs to be done," Galbraith said.

"We're going to represent each and every sport equally," stressed Galbraith, explaining that there will be at least three members at cross-country, swimming and volleyball. During basketball, there will be the same number of members at both the men's and women's games.

Galbraith mentioned that it has been a couple of years since Highline has had a cheerleader staff.

"They (previous cheerstaffs) weren't well received," Galbraith said. "I wanted to show them that it could work," she said.

Working with the cheerleaders will be the pepstaff. Both men and women are invited to join and help the cheerleaders perform and other related activities. Sign up sheets for the pepstaff are posted around the campus.

The 1982-83 cheerstaff includes, left to right, Terri Rusoff, Robin Logan, Kim Rytter, Gail Stoll and Terri Sullivan.

The Year of the Teacher

by DR. SHELLEY B. GORDON

Editor's note: Dr. Shelley B. Gordon received both B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees in chemistry from Washington State University. She has been the principal of Highline Community College since April of 1977.

Year of the Teacher - How appropriate in times of limited resources, times of restricted enrollments, and times of tremendous change in the technology in which we all live.

"Teacher" implies that there is a recipient of the work involved. Hence, a student is a requirement. A student who is enrolled, there are at least one who was too late to be admitted, wasn't able to find the classes needed, or who couldn't afford either the dollars or the time away from a job or the time needed to search for one.

Yet students, each of you pays less than 30 percent of the cost of your instruction. One can say then, that the state invested a substantial sum in your education. That places you on a great responsibility to the people who are investing in you a good return on that investment.

Highline is a college geared toward teaching and excellent laboratories, courses and bookkeeping, types of this world. To keep from a job or the time needed to search for one.

The Year of the Teacher - How appropriate in times of limited resources, times of restricted enrollments, and times of tremendous change in the technology in which we all live. For example: The students are invited to join and help the cheerleaders perform and other related activities. Sign up sheets for the pepstaff are posted around the campus.

Taking the class and the resources of the College are yours. May your experience be stimulating and rewarding. The faculty and the resources of the College are yours. May your experience be stimulating and rewarding.

The Year of the Teacher - How appropriate in times of limited resources, times of restricted enrollments, and times of tremendous change in the technology in which we all live. For example: The students are invited to join and help the cheerleaders perform and other related activities. Sign up sheets for the pepstaff are posted around the campus.

TAKE NOTE: Teachers talk

"The Year of the Teacher," the Thunderbird will feature a guest column written by a Highline instructor.

The column will be entitled "Take Note," and will appear in each issue following this one on the Thunderbird page.

Instructions are urged to deliver a double-spaced typed manuscript not to exceed 250 words to the Thunderbird office in Bldg. 20. Comments exceeding 250 words may be subject to editing.

In the event that two or more comments are received for one issue, the Thunderbird editorial staff will decide which comment will be printed on the basis of the relevancy to the campus and circumstances.

For more information on deadlines, etc., please contact Kathy Smith on ext. 251.

Thunderbird words

Sometimes things don't add up

Because I have trouble just balancing a checkbook, I do admire the accounting majors and bookkeeping types of this world. To keep one's life neatly in the debt and credit columns of a ledger means that profit and loss can be determined at a glance.

It has been a long summer, with many gains and many losses. Before I settle into a comfortable table fall routine of learning over at the same, precise instant every morning to turn off the alarm clock and drive past the same, familiar houses and fields on the way to school, I want to see the ledger for the summer of 1982.

In the loss column stands a whopping and embarrassing $90 million that Seafirst corporation lost on the Penn Small deal, while a healthy stock market caused many painful returns for stock brokers.

The State of Washington gained a state lottery and lost the $82 thousand mural of the "Lobos of Hercules" to the art critics that were elected to govern the state. Seattle regained the beautiful Olympic Hotel in all her non-union glory. Also regained was the sales tax on food. Part of the shift of bookkeeping a knowing what to consider a loss and which to consider a gain. Some can get richer every way so you just put them in the columns that looks the expected, I think.

I found a brother-in-law and a nephew. I lost a grandmother and a job.

Galbraith was Secretary of State George Schults. Lost, but not forgotten, was Secretary of State Alexander Sleg.

We are credited with the USS Ohio, first Trident-class submarine. Lest was the effort to try and stop it.

Credit Britain with the Falkland Islands. Debt Argentina.

The world seemed to give peace in Lebanon for a while, and then it was lost. The Iran-Iraq war drags on but nobody seems to care because neither one of them is a particular friend of anybody else.

The world has gained Prince William of Wales and lost Princess Grace of Monaco.

It was a bad summer to be the president of a small country. The president of Lebanon was blown up by a bomb, and the president of the Dominican Republic died by his own hand.

Some losses are easier to handle than others, some of us can afford the loss a little better. Some of the gains are not easy to accept, but beyond the wars and the peace are the individual losses that seem painful at any place: 123 passengers of the Pan Am airliner out of New Orleans, S.S. Bahamas of the Rio Grande Police, Ingrid Bergman, Henry Fonda, Dana Dowchick, John Gardner, Dave Growney.

The scene I will remember is a crowded, noisy bar where at one table a manostoned thankfully to the birth of a healthy new nephew, while at the next table a man drowned the sorrow of having watched a nephew stillborn. Perhaps the houses are simply more obvious. Who can tell which child that is born may grow up to be a courageous policeman, actor, hydroplane designer, novelist, broadcaster, or just person? The gains may not be so obvious. Life and death, gain and loss.

So I settle into my comfortable routine, and lean over at the same, precise time everyday to turn off the alarm clock, and as I drive past the same, familiar houses and fields on the way to school, nothing has really changed. You see, in bookkeeping it's not so much the chores at the bottom of the page that count so much as it's keeping each item in the right column. Gains and losses. Life and death. Credit and debit.
New faces

GLENN EDMISON

"When the students return, the new classes will be in full swing." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)

CYNTHIA SHEPPARD

"It's always refreshing to work with new students. Each one is unique and brings something new to the classroom." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)

RAFER LEWIS

"Highline has been a great professional experience and I look forward to continuing to work with students and staff." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)

MARY GATES

"I'm glad that I'll be teaching at Highline instead of in another state. It's closer to home and I feel more connected to my students." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia) familiar faces in new places

With over three decades of educational experience, Dr. Robert Smith's new position as associate dean of instruction at Highline Community College marks a significant milestone in his career. Smith, who earned his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Washington and his master's degree from Pacific Lutheran University, brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to his new role. He has served as a professor at various institutions, including Central Washington College of Education and the University of Puget Sound, and has also taught at the high school and community college levels. Smith's vast knowledge and expertise will undoubtedly contribute to the growth and development of Highline Community College.

MARY GATES

"I'm excited to be a part of the Highline Community College family. The campus has a great atmosphere and I look forward to working with the students and staff." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)

The arrival of new faces at Highline Community College, such as Dr. Robert Smith, is a testament to the institution's commitment to excellence and innovation. These new arrivals bring fresh perspectives and skills that will undoubtedly benefit the students and the community as a whole.

GLEN EDMISON

"The students are always eager to learn and it's rewarding to see their progress." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)

RAFER LEWIS

"I'm looking forward to working with the students and staff at Highline. It's an exciting time to be part of such a dynamic institution." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)

MARY GATES

"I'm looking forward to meeting the students and staff at Highline. It's an exciting time to be part of such a dynamic institution." (Photo credit: Mark Belongia)
Highline Happenings

Dance to the music...

Captain Pinstripe will be laying down the tunes for a "Welcome to Highline" dance tonight in the cafeteria from 9-12 p.m. Admission will be $3 for those with a student I.D. card, $3.50 without. Anyone interested can also catch a free preview at a noon performance today in the lounge.

For those students who are politically aware or want to be, a political forum will be held Tuesday at noon in the Artist-Lecture Center.

Clear the Table...

Pool players can chalk up their sticks for a pool tournament next Thursday in the lounge. People interested in participating can contact Denny Steussy in the Student Activities office or by phone ext. 256.

Hack and Home Erectus...

The Honors Colloquy will be presenting speakers in the Artist-Lecture Center again this year. The first one will be Bill Moeller who will be recreating the personality of Mark Twain on Wednesday and then next Wednesday when Charles Stevens will be presenting "The Case for Evolution." Both will be at noon.

Tapestries displayed

By Christine Valdes

In an attempt to expose people to other cultures, the Southwestern King County Art Museum is exhibiting "Weaving Traditions of Highland Bolivia" through November 16.

The museum is located on the fifth floor of the library and is managed by Dottie Harper who is assisted by Margaret Barry.

After a 1978 showing at the Craft Folk Art Museum in Los Angeles, the exhibit was brought to the museum in July in time for the出去's Weaver's Guild Convention being held.

Most of the collection was gathered by Laurie Alderson and Bruce Takami when they spent several years travelling on foot through the Bolivian Andes.

The rest of the collection came from UCLA and all over, according to Dottie Harper.

All of the tapestries were made in the old technique utilizing a drop spindle, looms and natural dyes. The wool came from alpacas and llamas.

She explained how chemical dyes are now being used to make the blankets brighter. Also, the sheep's wool that is now being used does not create as fine of weavings.

Harper explained how Bruce Takami came in to advise them and told them that they would need to build special models.

"We told him 'you're crazy, we have tons of models,'" Harper said.

"These Anglo-Saxon models won't work with these costumes," said Takami.

Library to display instructor's pics

When taking a break from teaching business, Instructor Jerry Tremaine takes photos.

Some of his photos will be shown through October 15 on the fourth floor of the library.

According to Tremaine, his photos "go beyond being simple pretty pictures. I've been told by people that they don't seem empty."

Tremaine tries to capture dramatic scenes in his photos and occasionally takes pictures that raise questions in people's minds.

"However, I don't like art that deliberately tries to fool people. I personally resent art of photography that's obscure," said Tremaine.

This will be Tremaine's second show. His first show in Spring Quarter of 1981 was well received according to him. He figures that "since 150 people bothered to sign a book choosing their favorites, about four times that many people probably went through."

He won a third place prize in the Jim Beam Scotch national photo contest in which there were "tens of thousands of entries, according to a letter sent to Tremaine from J.B.

"It felt good to be among 200 winners," said Tremaine.

Before becoming involved in photography, Tremaine had been an amateur painter for 30 years. He prefers photography because painting takes so much time and most of it is in the studio.

"Photography gets me out doing things," Tremaine explained. "When I take pictures I'm forced to see things that I wouldn't usually see."

He doesn't have a specific goal with his pictures. "Mostly I take pictures that people like," said Tremaine.

Special models and an authentic-looking goal took Dottie Harper and Margaret Barry three weeks to construct.

This year the museum will be working more closely with the school than in the past. Up to now the museum has been running on its own and until this year didn't have a sign.

"This should be a real asset," Harper said, adding that the hiring of Betty Colasurdo as a new board member should also be helpful.

"We want to be a service to the teachers and the college," she said.

"We would like to see a club or guild of students to work with us in the museum to_search for, go places together and learn," continued Harper.
Runners take their mark

Cross country, a sport for dedicated and well-disciplined runners, has started once again at Highline.

Because of participation for a women's team, the men's team, with nine runners, will carry the load for cross-country.

Last Saturday Highline ran to second place in the Green River Invitational. Green River placed first, Everett third and Yakima fourth.

Todd Henry was first place in the overall meet. Also placing among 50 runners in the 5.5 mile course were Harry Rutledge, Kurtz, first-year runners Jeff Boyle and Scott Darby.

"I wasn't pleased with the overall team performance," Frank said.

"When a few of the guys get in shape, we'll do better." Strong runner Syrstad was unable to run in the meet because of illness.

"We would have won the meet if he wasn't sick," noted Frank.

Standouts thus far in the season are second-year runners Todd Henry and Syrstad; first-year runners Kevin Rutledge, Ray Harris and Martin Kurtz. Rutledge is our number-two, and Rutledge is our number-three runner," Syrstad said.

"Their program and system runs the show," coach John Littleman notes. "It's just a matter of getting our gills wet, and we'll be tough," commented Littleman.

"Henry's our number-one runner, Harriss our number-two, and Rutledge our number-three runner," spryed Littleman.

"It's all a matter of getting our gills wet, and we'll be tough," commented Littleman.

Newly coached season opens for spikers

With a team consisting of 12 members, including three returning players, and a new coach, Highline's volleyball team starts their season.

Sophomore Ryan, and hitters Kathy Simonsen and State Whale have seniority on the young volleyball team.

Coach John Littleman, who has replaced retired Coach Eileen Broomell, says it's a growing year.

"We're starting from the beginning. Each player must get used to a similar style," Littleman states.

"I can't ask them to work any harder, we've just got to work a little more than I anticipated," stated Littleman.

Last Friday Night Highline was defeated in a match against Green River.

"We played really poorly, slack," Littleman said.

"I was upset at the team, not because we lost, just because we didn't play well."

With a three-year coach experienced program, Green River, with a strong no. of players, had the advantage.

If there was a key to the system, it's the team. Our girls are still learning a totally new system," Littleman added.

Unfortunately, our players were the key to the system.

The weakest part of the T-birds offensive game was the service. Among the serves, five service aces were accounted for. Green River had no problem returning the serves throughout the match.

Highlights in the match were 13 spike kills by Whale, eight from first-year Geraldine Jackson, and six by Simonsen.

To bring down those spike kills, setter assisters were contributed by freshman Laura Earl with 13, seven by Ryan, and six by freshman Debbie Stumm.

"We're not awesone, but we're going to be tough," commented Littleman.

The T-birds will have Slagg Valley in their first league game of the season tonight, starting at 7 p.m. in the Pavilion.

STUDENTS:

Due to the group effort of Northwest College Bookstore Association (N.C.B.A.), comprised of 47 members, Highline College Bookstore can offer our students excellent prices on stationery items. This is a list of some of the items available.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Cost</th>
<th>Supported</th>
<th>University</th>
<th>HCC</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fillet Paper (100 count)</td>
<td>$ .76</td>
<td>$1.65</td>
<td>$ .86</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fillet Paper (300 count)</td>
<td>1.65</td>
<td>3.29</td>
<td>1.75</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Typing Paper (100 count)</td>
<td>.89</td>
<td>1.55</td>
<td>.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Typing Paper (300 count)</td>
<td>1.85</td>
<td>3.29</td>
<td>1.95</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Report Briefs (Brads)</td>
<td>.23</td>
<td>.39</td>
<td>.25</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Report Briefs (Pockets)</td>
<td>.28</td>
<td>.49</td>
<td>.30</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Imprint Notebooks — Highline College (80 count)</td>
<td>.75</td>
<td>1.29</td>
<td>.85</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Imprint Notebooks — Highline College (100 count)</td>
<td>1.26</td>
<td>1.95</td>
<td>1.35</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pee Chees (2 pockets)</td>
<td>.23</td>
<td>.39</td>
<td>.25</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Index Cards 3 x 5 (50 count)</td>
<td>.38</td>
<td>.69</td>
<td>.40</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Highline College Bookstore

Building 6