Dropouts plague Highline

College has second-worst retention rate in Washington

By Nathan Golden
Staff Reporter

Retention rates at Highline are among Washington's lowest for community colleges, but college officials say the problem is no longer going to be ignored.

"Retention is an area of major focus and is taken very personally," said Bob Hughes, dean of instruction for academic transfer programs.

Last year, 47 percent of the students who started at Highline in the fall were gone before the end of Spring Quarter. Hughes cites retention as an area that needs improvement, along with the problem of students not returning in the spring.

"At absolutely reasonable," he said.

In the last four years, Highline's retention has never reached more than 60 percent when compared to the other 26 community colleges in Washington. Retention rates are based on the number of students enrolled in fall, compared to the same students enrolled in spring.

This year, Hughes said it is impossible to even reach a 100 percent retention rate, because students may drop out of school, either during or after the spring.

But, he said, Highline can do better than last year's 53 percent mark.

Hughes is pushing for better advising for students and possibly offering classes to help students understand how college works. He has also asked for a Winter storm watch '98

Snow, icy roads close college, keep students home

Highline President Ed Cormack looked out the window of his bus Sunday afternoon and said the road conditions have been hard for everyone. He added that the students are doing their best to stay on track and do well this semester.

"I think they are doing a great job," he said.

"I have no doubt that it will be better than last year," Hughes said.

Highline is offering free classes to help students understand how college works. The college has also asked for a federal Upward Bound grant of $300,000 for retention.

Athletic adviser Margo Buchan is undergoing negotiations with Hughes to set up a Co-ordinator of Retention position to further address the problem. Buchan has made significant improvements in the athletic department, helping to retain more than 90 percent of his student-athletes.

Highline honors King's life

By Cheryl Croft
Staff Reporter

Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday will be from honored at Highline during the week of Jan. 20-22.

The festivities will be funded by the Highline Multicultural Programs, and sponsored by the Martin Luther King Planning Committee. The committee consists of Highline staff, faculty, and community members.

Dr. Albert Black, a popular sociologist from the University of Washington, will discuss the legacy of Dr. King, in his speech "Where's the Dream?"

"Dr. Black is a very dynamic speaker," said Kayleen Oka, coordinator of Multicultural Programs.

This lecture honoring the late Dr. King will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 20, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Building 7. Refreshments will be served.

Metro Transit will have an informational booth available today, Jan. 15, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., in the main building to answer questions about route changes that will affect students. Representatives from community relations and transit service staff will be on hand in Building 6 to answer questions and make suggestions.

Highline students are also reminded that the Puget Sound Regional Transit District will be holding meetings at 7:30 p.m. at Highline to discuss changes to the Highline routes. The meetings will be held in Building 6.

New elections this month

By W.B. Heming
Staff Reporter

Three at-large positions in student government have opened up this quarter, following three resignations in the last month.

Students interested in running can pick up information packets from Paul Gerhardt Jr., elected coordinator and Associated Students of Highline Community College (ASHCC) vice-president of administration.

Candidates must obtain 50 signatures to run for the office of student-at-large, according to the ASHCC by-laws. Candidate applications are due tomorrow by noon and must be approved by Gerhardt.

The winter elections will not be promoted at the same level as the fall balloting, Gerhardt said. "I'm not going to be wasting my time doing a promotion that doesn't have any impact," he said.

De Las Alas is planning a trip to Olympia in February as well as working on ASHCC by-laws revisions. Moira Windon, former clubs and organizations liaison, has taken a job in the Student Programs office.

"My situation has changed and my goals have changed," she said.

Windon will be replaced by student-at-large Raul Sedano. "I'm going to take up some of Moira's ideas," Sedano said. "They were good ideas." Some of those ideas include creating a club directory and club calendar of events.

The main objective of the meeting is to expose evening students to the wide variety of resources that the school offers them while trying to reach their educational goals. Faculty members will also be available to answer questions that students might have regarding their studies at Highline. Free refreshments will be provided.

Last fall, when the event made its debut, it was well received with over 120 students in attendance.

Evening students meet

Evening students will have the opportunity to attend an informal reception this Wednesday, Jan. 21 and Thursday, Jan. 22 from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Union Bay room located on the lower level of Building 8.

The event was organized by Dennis Stavisky of the Educational Planning Center.

The election itself will be Thursday, Jan. 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and again from 6-8 p.m. The vote's table will be overseen by student government members.

The resignations came in a hurry. Student-at-large Jon Rugan resigned his post for Fall Quarter to attend school in eastern Washington.

Former Vice President of Legislation Alexandria Peacock resigned due to personal reasons. Student-at-large Yenmera Windon will take over her role.

ments will be offered at the discussion.

On Wednesday Jan. 21, Building 8 will play host to the Martin Luther King Jr. Birthday Bash from noon to 2 p.m.

The pot-luck celebration will feature a video on Dr. King's accomplishments, plenty of food, and music.

"This is considered our 'fun day' of the week's celebration. Since it is a pot-luck, the students are welcome to bring any dish they would like to the Birthday Bash," Oka said. "We've had committee pot-lucks in the past that were a great success. I do hope this one has the same effect," she said.

Lastly, the Martin Luther King Freedom Celebration will be held on Thursday, Jan. 22 from 1-2 p.m.

This celebration will feature a slide show about Dr. King, and the Gethsemane Gospel Singers.

The Kent-Meridian High School's Stomp Group, "The Unstompables," will also appear at the celebration, along with the Martin Luther King Humanitarian Awards Ceremony.

The ceremony will present awards to staff, faculty, community members, and students who make a difference at Highline.

"It is important to note that this week is not the only time that people should recognize how important Martin Luther King Jr. was to our society. All people should recognize his accomplishments every day of the year," Oka said.

Spring Festival will bring Spring Fever

Bringing in the new year means bring it alluring and interesting events the wide student body will enjoy.

The Highline Spring Festival will make its mark at Highline on May 1 of this year. The festival is a combination of different program events, all combined into one. The event will be sponsored by the entire campus.

"There are many special events involved in making this festival a success," said Kelli Johnston, director of Women's Programs.

The coop, outreach, student activities, and publication offices are just some of the many departments involved in planning the festival.

"We've been doing spring celebrations for 15 years at Highline, all with different forms and foci. This year we wanted to expand the celebration," said Bonnie Shirley, coordinator with the Women's Programs.

The festival will offer many free events. A wide array of workshops will be set up, with a community dinner with everyone can enjoy.

There will also be plenty of spots activities and music that everyone can enjoy.

The evening events will include a community dinner with jazz music by the Ellen Finn Trio. Following will be Cecile Andrews, a keynote speaker and columnist for the Seattle Times. Her speech, "Finding and Living Your Passion," will be based on her book, "The Circle of Simplicity: Return to the Good Life."

"We're trying to get more workshops available for the festival," Johnston said.

Fight, dance, and win big prizes this Friday afternoon in Building 9. Club Night will offer food and bingo from 4-6 p.m.

The Music Department is putting together the first opportunity for students to meet new people while getting their boogie on with entertainment that will make you want for more.

The evening will be fast and furious because there are some big prizes up for grabs. Admission will be $1 in advance in the Student Program Office in Building 8, or at the door.

At the conclusion of the evening, the stick drum band and bingo are not your thing then you may still want to attend because Team Highline is bringing in D.J. Daikus to spin some dance tunes.

Arcturus entries needed

Highline's student literary magazine, the Arcturus, is looking for artwork by Feb. 6.

The Arcturus is put together by students in the Humanities, Graphic Design, and Printing departments, is offering all Highline students and faculty the opportunity to submit their work for publication.

Photographs and artwork should be reproducing in black and white.

Arcturus Advisor Sharon Hashimoto will collect students' work in Building 5, Room 212, until Feb. 6.

All submissions should include artist's name and telephone number on the back.

Bag check takes first step, but not enough

By Kasey Oka

The Highline Community College Bookstore has taken steps to combat book bag theft.

Thanks in part to employee suggestions, students have been able to check their bags before going into the store.

The bag check, Bookstore Manager Randy Fisher said, will operate for the first two weeks of every quarter during normal bookstore hours as long as he has staff available to run it.

The “bag check system has recured all kinds of positive responses,” he said. “That response has come with good reason. In the past, students were forced to leave their bags unattended as they ran into the bookstore to pick up their textbooks. During the beginning of the quarter, lines in the store could force students to leave their bags unattended for more than 15 minutes, sometimes even longer. Sadly, thefts of book bags sometimes were the result.

With the new system, even if students are not able to get a spot in the bag check, there is still a responsible party keeping watch over their precious cargo.

While the book bag check does solve the problem of book bag theft, it is not a foolproof solution. The checking system is only operable when there is enough staff to run it. On more than one occasion over the past two weeks, the booth has been left unattended.

Perhaps the long-term solution would be to install lockers for students use. Even if the lockers were to cost 25 cents every time a student used them, it would be cheaper than losing $100-200 worth of textbooks.

It’s a shame that precautions must be taken to guard against theft at Highline. Despite this, further steps should be taken so that no student should ever have to worry about running into the bookstore at any time.

Soap Box

By Kasey Oka

What harm is this doing to the whole human race? I touched my memory for any recent incidents I had read or heard or seen (that weren’t movies) that gave me some sign that the fight for peace and equality is still being fought. Nothing outstanding came to mind. “It makes me sad too,” I thought. As we remember Martin Luther King next week let’s not just remember Martin Luther King. In next week’s issue I will tackle the injustices, even the little ones we might against people of all colors and that we often let pass every day. I plan on making my own personal promise towards some kind of social change. And it involves a dream too.

Time, care make holidays warm for elderly

By Yenisma De Las Alas

Residents of the home cheered loudly as A.P.I. Club Advisor and Highline's Math Instructor, Barbara Hunter, played her guitar and sang to "Long Time Ago in Bethlehem.

"I really enjoyed the time we spent at Keiro, not only was it uplifting, it was a lot of fun," De Las Alas said.

Close to the end of the visit the A.P.I. Club gave their new friends at Keiro hugs and cautions. Expressions of joys and tears were displayed as cautions were being given.

"It feels really good to know that three hours of your time can bring a lifetime of happiness into other people's lives," said Ray Laizom.

The Asian-Pacific Islander Club would like to thank Keiro Senior Center for allowing this opportunity to happen, and everyone else who participated in this event: Margie Macan, Francis Yno, Myra Rivera, and Tishie Nguyen.

Letters to the Editor

Freedom comes with responsibility

Dear Editor:

I am profoundly incensed and appalled by some of the ill-educated, improper, ill-man-nered, and derogatory language that has been part of certain articles in the Thunderword. We do have freedom of speech, but along with that freedom comes the responsibility to write our fellow man with sensitivity. It is a fact that 10 percent of the population is disabled. Anyone of us could become disabled in the next 24 hours of our lives. All of us are only one incident away from joining this group of "people with disabilities."

Unfortunately, people with disabilities do have many obstacles to overcome, and two of those obstacles are not necessary. One is the insensitive use of labels for people with disabilities. The other is the lack of parking for people with disabilities.

As the caring community of adults that we are here at HCC, I call on your higher level of thinking, and that in-"not be so intolerant as to remark about people because of age, race, clothing, or disability is beyond my level of understanding."

Thank you,

Speakers invited, not confirmed

Dear Editor:

I wanted to give you a quick note of thanks for publishing the ASHCC information in last week's edition of the Thunderword. Nelson Cristian, ASHCC President, wanted me to write this letter for clarification on a couple of inaccuracies. In the article titled "Vice President invites suggestions," the report-er sites that "Gov. Gary Locke has been invited to speak," and that "Congressman Steve Largent will also speak." I must clarify that I do not believe that these two leaders be invited as guest speakers. However, they have not yet been invited. The Multicultural Leadership Conference is still in the founda-tional stage. We (Tourann and I) hope to have all the de-tails and arrangements worked out over the Fall/Winter break. I appreciate the generosity and thoughtfulness of your reporter, Bill Randall. Bill should be commended because of his out-standing job this quarter as a matute-serious writer for Wash-ington State's finest community college weekly paper, The Thunderword.

The other misprint was also found on page six of last week's paper. The article, "Student-at-large resigns post," stated that "Paul Rugan...resigned yester-day." The name of the person who resigned is Jon Rugan. We will miss Jon and will wish him the best at Eastern Washington University.

The ASHCC is eagerly anticipating working with the next student-at-large. We would like to encourage your readers to run for the position this quarter, especially if they really want to be a part of a team that wants to make a positive difference in the lives of Highline students.

To all students of Highline, from the student government, thanks for a great quarter! We look forward to serving you for the next two quarters and are always open to help and listen to any student who needs our assistance.

Sincerely,

Paul L. Gerhardt Jr., ASHCC Vice President of Administration

Proposal to serve only lazy students

Dear Editor

Sue Stroppa's proposal for a shuttle from Midway to the campus has given me some good ideas. Everyday I have to walk all the way from Building 21 to 17 and back again to 21, clear across campus! I think that we need a team service sim-ilar to the train at Disneyland!

Or better yet, let's provide a break powered wheelchair for every student. I'm sure that if we asked those already confined to wheelchairs, they would tell us how convenient it is not to have to bother using their legs! I think Sue is an even better idea! Let's turn Midway back over to the cama-bus service, and in five minutes, am on campus.

Thank you for doing your work.
Highline men go undefeated over break

By Michael Stampalia
Staff Reporter

Highline's basketball team defeated Whatcom Community College on Saturday 102-53, making their overall record 13-1 and league record 3-0. The Thunderbirds were out Whatcom with crisp outlet passing on the fast break the entire game.

The Orcas kept the game close until the final 10 minutes of the game, when the Thunderbirds went on a 44-14 run to close out the ball game.

"We played 'til the last minute," forward Todd Watts said.

"We've talked in practice about keeping our intensity the entire game, because that's what championship teams do," Head Coach Joe Callero said. "When we do that we will wear teams out."

Reggie Ball led Highfive with 23 points and 12 assists, making four of eight three-point attempts. Quincy Wilder, Adam Enfield, and Shawn Madson scoring 18, 15, and 11 points respectively.

After losing a non-league game at Chemeketa 83-73 in only their second game of the season, the T-Birds have won 12 straight games.

They beat Centralia in their next game 80-63, with Wilder, Garrett Miller, Madson, Todd Watts, and Mary DeLange all scoring in double figures.

The T-birds then defeated and Waki Wah 95-74 at home. Spokane 90-73, Portland 80-63, Chemeketa 98-73, and South Puget Sound 93-73, Portland 114-95, and Clark 76-70 in the three day invitational. On the road at Mt. Hood in the Saints Crossroads tournament the T-birds defeated Big Bend 94-86, Lane 72-66, and Mt. Hood 80-73.

We got up by 20, but we let off and they come back," Watts said.

The win over Mt. Hood closed out the T-birds non-league schedule making them 10-1 in non-league games.

The Thunderbirds opened league play at Skagit Valley with an 85-72 victory. Madson led Highline with 22 points.

At home the Thunderbirds faced Olympic, winning 81-64 despite shooting just 39.5 percent from the floor. Highline limited the Rangers to 29 percent shooting and held a 65-42 rebounding advantage. DeLange led Highline with 21 points, with Wilder adding 16.

As the defending NWACC champions, the Thunderbirds aren't worried about teams trying to knock them off.

"Everybody likes to knock off number one," freshman Gabe Ladd said.

"I can't worry about what other teams are going to do because I can't control that. I can only control what my team does," Coach Callero said.

Highline now hits the road, facing South Sound on Wednesday and Everett on Saturday.

Results of Wednesday night's game at Edmonds were unavailable at press time.

Lady Thunderbirds win, then drop seven straight

By K.M. Petersen
Sports Editor

The Highline Lady Thunderbirds dropped their seventh straight game on Saturday, losing to Whatcom 94-84. Despite forcing 39 Whatcom turnovers and leading for most of the game, unfavorable officiating cost the T-Birds down the stretch.

Whatcom shot 46 free throws for the game, Highline shot only 27.

Whatcom took advantage of the chances, outscoring the Lady T-Birds at the line by 22 points. Whatcom's Marla Johnson capitalised, hitting all 14 of her free throw attempts and scoring 36 points.

The discrepancy proved to be more than Highline could handle. Two technical fouls and one intentional foul were whistled on the frustrated squad.

Strong performances for the Lady T-Birds were turned in by Jennifer Tatebe, Karen Nadeau, Kristi Duggan, Amie Johnson, and Valerie Natre.

Duggan and Johnson both had double-doubles, with both scoring and rebounding in double digits. Johnson managed the feat in only 17 minutes.

The game was much like many of their prior performances. The team turned in strong individual performances and scored enough points to stay close, but didn't win.

"Each game we play, we're getting a lot better, but we're just not coming out a winner," Nadeau said.

After starting winter break with a three point loss to Centralia, the team earned their first win of the season, beating Chemeketa 98-86 in overtime.

Nadeau was on fire, shooting 12-15 from the field to score 32 points to go with 12 assists and 6 steals. Duggan scored 23 and Natre put in 15.

The squad then traveled to South Puget Sound to participate in a tournament, where they lost to both South Puget Sound and Big Bend.

The normally high-scoring T-Birds managed only 54 points in the South Puget Sound game, led by Nadeau's 13, and 61 in the Big Bend game, led by Duggan's 16.

The next weekend, the Lady T-Birds competed in a tournament at Lower Columbia. They lost to the host team by 24 points thanks to shooting a mere 30.1 percent from the field and committing 31 turnovers.

The next night, they lost to Mt. Hood by 11. They again shot only 31 percent and were put away by Mt. Hood's 54.5 percent accuracy from three-point range.

The Lady T-Birds began their league season at perennial powerhouse Skagit Valley.

Skagit Valley entered the game undefeated, and proved too tough for Highline.

The Highline squad was very competitive in the game. Despite being down 70-37 with nine minutes remaining in the game, they refused to give up, eventually trimming the lead to 12 points before losing 76-62.

Following the loss, Highline faced Olympic at home. Despite controlling the game early, Olympic rallied in the second half, taking a lead with nine minutes left that they would never relinquish.

"Some games left the team with a 1-1 record. It's frustrating, but we're hanging in there," said Nadeau, who leads the team with 18.1 points, 4.2 assists, and 4.3 steals.

"We're doing well, but we can't finish," she said.

Results of Wednesday night's game at Edmonds were unavailable at press time.

The Lady T-Birds play at Everett on Jan. 17 before hosting Peninsula on Jan. 19 and Bellevue on Jan. 27.

All this snow has made me wish I could just quit everything and become a full-time ski bum. That would be the life. Just me, the snow, my ski, and the ski bunnies (This is my fantasy, after all.)

Lots of ski bunnies. I'm telling one of my eager coworkers about how much I wish I was on the slopes and not slaving for the 'Company,' and they have to bring up dead guys.

You know, Sonny Bone and Michael Kennedy.

Bone was a pretty decent politician, no scandals ever dogged him, and not a bad singer. Kennedy might have had his share of damaging rumors but I never had a problem with him.

I don't mean to make light of their untimely deaths, but their accidents don't reflect on the dangerousness of skiing. There are several unwritten rules of the mountain all skiers should know.

Always ski with at least one other person.

Bone was by all accounts an expert skier who had skied the same run where his death occurred countless times. He was alone and when he hit the tree no one could get him medical attention before he was too late.

Ski in control and watch where you are going.

The Kennedy family has a tradition of playing "snow football," where they pass a canteen down the mountain. Michael Kennedy was in charge of passing the canteen while skiing downhill the family archives. The video ends with him trying to pass off the canteen as he hits the tree.

Any other family would be kicked off the mountain if caught playing such a game.

While Bone and Kennedy lie in caskets, many wonder about the safety of skiing.

in the coming weeks, join the Go Pass program.

Saunders hopes to have a run on putting some time to the end of January, after Metro has finished its meetings.

Several other options will be available to students, including:

- For the 166 route, which runs from Des Moines to Federal Avenue. Several route alterations will be made, including changing the 166 to run south.

- The 189 may or may not serve the college, depending on the student's route and price.

Kathy Hall at Metro said that the contract is currently for one year, but has
